PATRICK COUNTY HIGH SCHOOL
ROUTE 5 BOX 65
STUART, VIRGINIA 24171
(540) 694-7137

POPULATION: 1052

The Blue Ridge Mountains are but one of our most beautiful features in Patrick County.

Are You Inspired?

From the endless mountain ranges to the calming sunsets, Patrick County presents a wealth of majestic beauty. Smiling faces greet you at each corner. Taking pride in our school and our endeavors is what it is all about. Our lives are but a journey to find our place in life. Where do you fit in on this journey? Where are you?

As another day ends, we are inspired by the final colors that are projected onto the paths that we all must choose to follow.

Are You In On The Action?

It's the little things that really matter in life. In a twinkle of the eye, they are all gone. However, it's nice to know that those events can be captured forever in a moment.

Students could be found clowning around in the courtyard during lunches. These fine specimens were also quite excited to lend a helping hand in posing cheerfully.

And The Race Is On! Special Olympians race toward the finish line, with their Varsity Club member by their side. Special Olympics was a time for the Olympians and the club members to bond, and many formed lasting friendships.

Overcoming Obstacles

Special Olympics

Time For A Break. Terry Plaster makes a run for the refreshment tent during a break in his busy schedule. Individual participants kept Varsity Club members busy throughout this eventful day.

"It was an outstanding experience for me to see how meaningful the event was to the Special Olympians," stated one Varsity Club member. Many Varsity Club students felt this way about the 1998 Special Olympics, held on May 8. In addition to Varsity Club, members of the Patrick County 4-H Teen Board helped with Special Olympics. Teen Board member Brooke Anderson said, "helping with Special Olympics was quite an experience. It made me realize how easy it is to help people with special needs."

Also, Little Caesar's Pizza and E-Z Stop donated food to the Special Olympics. The Special Olympians came to Patrick County High School from the PARC workshop and the local elementary schools.

Special Olympics was a time for high school students to develop friendships with the Special Olympians, while having a day of fun. The participants played many games, including the softball throw, frisbee toss, shuttle run, long jump, wheelchair bowling, and 50- 400 meter dashes. Many Special Olympians and Varsity Club members had the Art Club paint their faces; adorning them with everything from their sports numbers to Adidas emblems.

Miss Joanne Amos said one of the most memorable experiences of Special Olympics had to be Josh Harbour, Special Olympian, singing the National Anthem. Special Olympics proved to be an unforgettable event for all involved, and the most commonly heard comment on the field was, "I can't wait until next year!"

Do The Twist! Giselle Batcheller, Gail Stone, and Blaire Swails cut loose, showing off their dancing skills. Prom gave many people the courage to dance anyway they wanted to, and with anyone they wanted to.

Let's Sit This One Out. Dawn Helms and James Helton take a break from dancing to talk and enjoy the scenery. Forest Park was a perfect place to hold Prom because of the spacious ballroom and beautiful grounds.

Truly, Madly, Deeply

Prom

Would you like to dance? This was a familiar question to those who attended the 1998 Prom, sponsored and planned by the junior class. The theme was "Truly, Madly, Deeply," taken from the hit song by Savage Garden. The favors were memory books and photo albums. The colors were navy and gold. Instead of the traditional Prom in the gym, the class of 1999 voted for a Prom at Forest Park Country Club in Martinsville. Getting the Prom moved to a different location was a very difficult task. The class officers, President Libby Belcher, Vice-President Joni Dellenback, Secretary Ashly Johnson, and Treasurer Vanessa Foley, had to prepare a speech to go before the School Board. The junior class then had to wait for the Board to approve the motion. After what seemed like an eternity, the committee got the green light to move ahead with the plans.

The next step in the Prom planning process was picking out dresses, tuxedos, and flowers. Many Prom attendants chose traditional dress, such as long black gowns, basic black tuxedos, and the classic rose. Others chose a daring approach, with unusual patterns for dresses, unique accessories, and uncommon flower choices. There was also the romantic approach to Prom dresses, shown by Cinderella type dresses, top hats and tails, and long, draping bouquets.

After all the planning and purchasing, came the big night. Girls spent hours at the salon, and guys made final adjustments to tuxedos. Many couples double-dated to the Prom, renting limos and reserving large restaurant tables. Friends greeted one another at the country club after dining at various restaurants, including Applebee's and Sage Brush. Students of Patrick County High School saw each other in a new light, the light of Forest Park Country Club. May 16, 1998, will be treasured in the hearts of many; a night of dancing, a night to spend with that special someone, a night to remember forever.

This Is Great! Amelia Feron poses for the camera, an excited look on her face. Amelia was one of the few underclassmen who got to enjoy the Prom before their Junior year.

More Tape, Please! Prom Steering Committee spends their Saturday morning putting up the final touches to the Prom atmosphere. The Steering Committee was made up of Juniors and was advised by Mr. Dunlap.

"The prom was an unforgettable experience, and I wouldn't have missed it for the world!"

-Amanda Goins, 12

Want Some? Jason Handy shares a dance with Devon Overby as he drinks a cool refresher. Many tasty drinks and snacks were served at the Prom.

"Forest Park had a better atmosphere than the gym. It shows the administration gives us a lot of responsibility by letting us have the prom."

-Andrew Blackwell, 12

Hold Still! Leigh Anne Handy grins happily as Patrick Pascale crowns her Prom Princess. Prom King, Queen, Prince, and Princess were voted on by the rest of the junior and senior classes.

The Beginning of the End Graduation

"This is it, the moment we have waited so long for." This quote sums up the attitude of the Senior Class of 1998 on graduation night. The Class of 1998 stood together for the last time in their high school career on June 9, 1998. The class flower was a white rose dipped in lavender, with the colors being lavender and silver. The 155 students were led through their senior year by Brian Kornett, President, Crystal Pilson, Vice-President, and Shuana Penn, Secretary. To the tune of Smashing Pumpkins' "Today," they marched around the gym floor at the first and last assemblies of the year. They left the school that last time after commencement ceremonies; the class motto ringing in their ears. "We came together as strangers, but we leave as eternal friends." They wore their caps and gowns with pride, and turned their tassels with excitement for the future.

That future was scary for some, thrilling for others. Some students chose to continue their education, attending college everywhere from PHCC to VMI. Many went straight into the work force, others married and settled new homes soon after graduation was over.

No matter what the choice for the future, the Class of 1998 spent some of the best years of their lives at Patrick County High School. They will remember graduation as a goal they worked toward for many years, a time that one day looked so far in the future, and now looks so far in the past.

This Is It! Blaire Swails hams it up for a picture in her cap and gown. Seniors were very excited to graduate, but most had doubts about the future.

Moving To The Top. The top ten seniors pose together with their honor stoles and cords. These students worked hard from eighth until twelfth grade to achieve this honor.

Give Me A Hand. Sue Ellen Justice helps one of her fellow seniors position her cap for cap and gown pictures. These pictures were one of the many activities that seniors participated in.

Remember The Time? Slade Mankins and Stephen Henderson reflect on good times they shared. After five years in high school, some seniors found it as hard to leave their teachers as their friends.

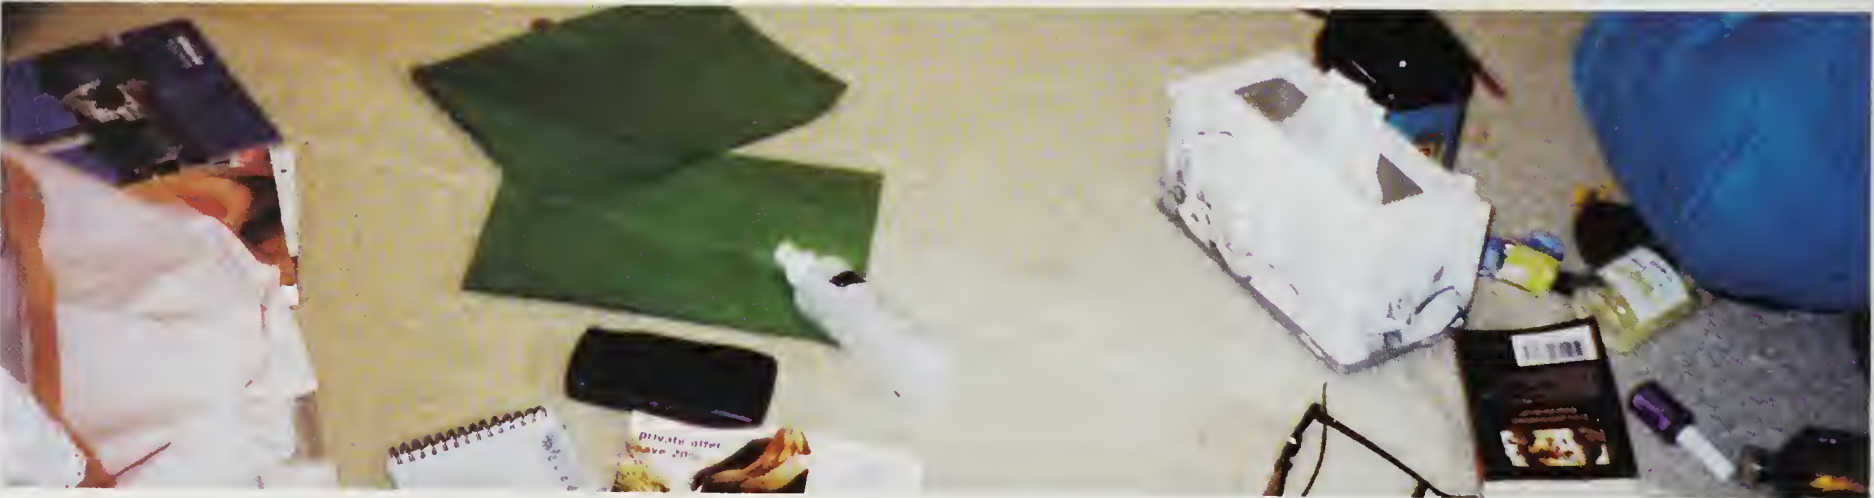

Don't Start Yet! Lucas Cockram hurries to the field, cap in hand. Many seniors had so many activities to attend, they felt rushed to get to everything on time.

Dig! Dig! Dig! That's all you'll ever do if your room looks like this one. This is a typical scene in the average teenage dwelling.

A Bag Here! A Ball There! It's amazing the odds and ends one can find while searching for that long lost treasure.

This Is Organization!!! Careful placement is the key to having a successful mess, as is evident from this disaster area.

Your Nasty Nest

Messy Rooms

Whether it was because you did not have time to clean it, you did not care, or you like it the way it is, everyone in some point of his or her life has had a messy room. It is the most normal thing in a student's life. High schoolers, especially those who participated in extracurricular activities, cannot find time to slide straightening up their rooms into their busy schedule. Devon Overby, a senior, quotes, "My room gets messy because I never hang up my clothes and throw them in the floor."

Cleaning your messy room could also be a very exciting thing to do. Most say that they did not even remember the last time it was clean. Molded food, smelly clothes, and old love letters are just a few of the treasures that you can find as you clean your room. Amelia

"The most disgusting thing I've ever found in my room is some black, sticky substance that smelled like cabbage."

-Ryan Hopkins, 12

Feron, sophomore, says the most disgusting thing she ever found in her room was a glass of old orange juice, garnished with fungus and fruit flies.

Cluttered rooms are so normal to students that they are ignored easily. It was found to be difficult for a person to keep up their grades, participate in after-school activities, or stay in style when they had to worry about their nasty room. In fact, many times, a student's mother or father will clean his or her room. Brandon Young, sophomore, prevents this by telling his parents that even though his room looks messy, it's actually organized. Many PCHS students are happy with their rooms being messy. They claim, "I like it this way!"

Stack It, Pile It, Stuff It!!! This bedroom perfectly illustrates the need for more space. Many students found their rooms too small for the collection of necessities they owned.

What, Make The Bed? This mess pictures a common site in teenagers' rooms, even late in the evening. Most students were too busy with school and other activities to clean their rooms.

"Ever Heard of a Razor?" Brooke and Jennie Anderson rest their small feet with Harry the big-foot at Universal Studios. Most students found their vacation as a time to experience new things.

Go to the pool? See a movie? Babysit? These are just a few of the many choices students can make during their summer break. Ashley Collins, a subfreshman, adds that her favorite thing to do on her summer break is play any kind of sport.

Most everyone had to stay busy. Some had summer jobs, such as babysitting, working at restaurants, or life guarding. Many students attended camps, such as band camp to prepare for their marching season. Many PCHS students attended 4-H Camp and State Congress. Athletes went to many different camps to prepare for the upcoming year. Some individuals attended leadership camps and church camps to pass their summer days more quickly.

Another aspect of summer was spending time with friends. Many students said that they felt they could not spend enough quality time with their friends during the school year, and summer was a great time to catch up with the fun that they missed out on earlier. One senior this year said, "I had a great time hanging out with my friends before they left for college."

Summer was a great time to catch some rays, take a dip in the pool or chill with your best buds. Most students enjoyed laying in their cozy beds, and catching up on some ZZZs they might have missed during the school year.

Even though students seem to stay just as busy during the summer as during the school year, everyone enjoys their summer and hates to see it come to an end each year.

"Free at Last!" Ben Sloop takes time out to howl at the moon (the sun?) during his trip to New Mexico. Many students of PCHS saved their summers to experience new and exciting opportunities.

Enjoy it While it Lasts

Summer Fun

Show Some Teeth! Miss Belinda Jordan poses with Timon the warthog during her trip to Disney World this summer. Teachers as well as students saw the summer as a chance for some time to relax and have fun.

Marilyn Mason??!! No, just Miss Kendra Weber dressed up for one of the activities she participated in while serving as a counselor at a camp in Florida. Often times, summer jobs can be just as much fun as work.

Look Out, Jeff Gordon! Jennifer Boyd and Tamara Overby take a siesta from spinning around the track at NASCAR Café's go-cart course in Myrtle Beach. Summer was a great time for students to take vacations together.

Was Your Face Red?

Embarrassing Moments

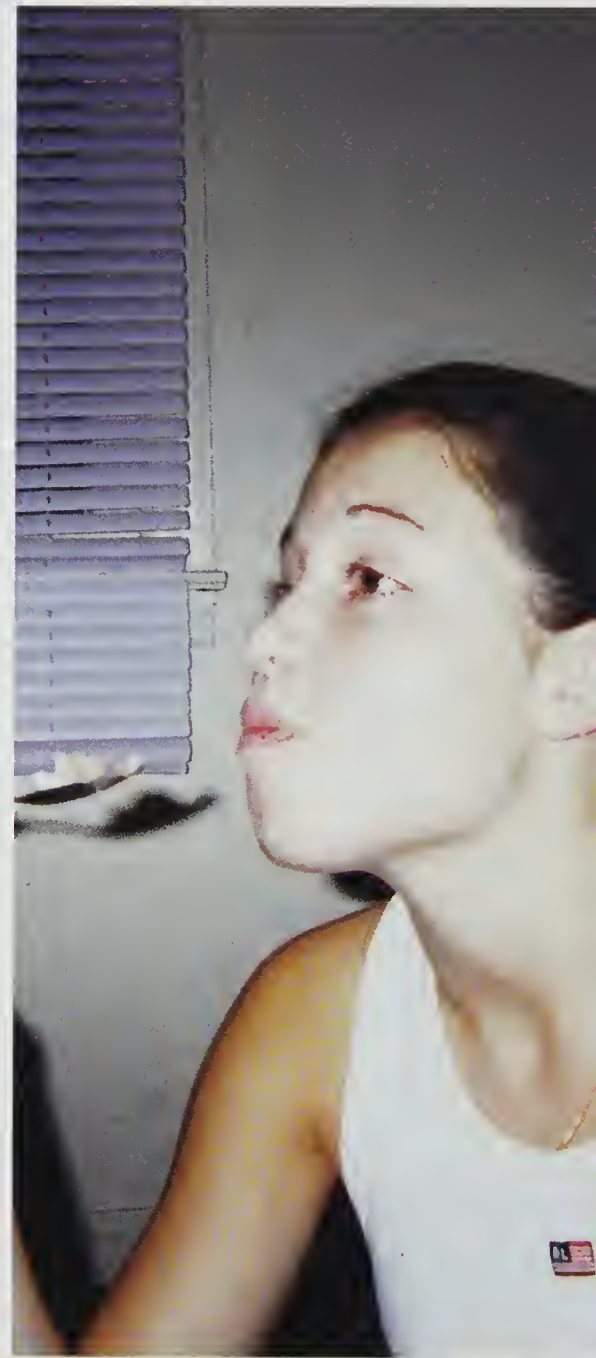

It is the worst when you start to feel your face getting hot and the laughter of your peers increasing. Embarrassing moments are not unusual among students. Most teenagers experience these horrid moments daily, but shrug them off quickly after. Curt Pilson, freshman, quotes, "My most embarrassing moment was when I was in band class and somebody pulled down my pants, showing my shinnies."

There are many different situations people can get themselves into. Either if there was something in your teeth or nose, your pants came unzipped, or if you spilled food all down yourself, there is always something to be picked on about. Devon Overby, a senior, quotes, "The most embarrassing moment I ever had was when I fell off of Andrew Blackwell's treadmill, which was going at warp speed, and I burned both of my legs. Everyone was laughing, including me, even though it hurt extremely bad. I have scars to prove it!!"

The best way to get out of an embarrassing situation is to laugh and forget it. If you ponder over it forever, a bigger deal will be made over a small thing. Being a younger person, you discover very quickly that being embarrassed is a normal thing and it is best to not worry about them. It is bad to be laughed at, so laugh along with your peers to ease the embarrassment.

No matter how hard you try to avoid these moments, you will always run across many during your lifetime.

Don't Make Me Laugh! Mandy Hughes tries to stuff down a spoonful of cereal, with another spoon in her hand and waiting. Many students found candid shots to be the most embarrassing.

Monkey Business! The Lady Cougars spend their time off from camp goofing around and having fun. Usually, one of the easiest embarrassments to get over is one that is with friends.

And We Elected Him? Senior Terrence Nowlin takes a break from his every day duties as SCA President to sit back and have some fun. It's not everyday that students can reveal their "true" identities.

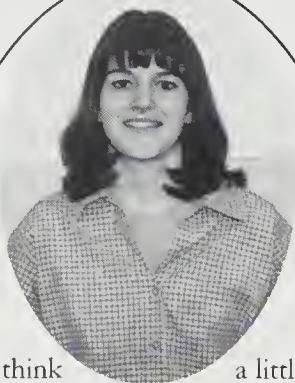

That Must Be Some Dream! Tenth grader Wendy Weber snoozes through the day, and the mystery photographer takes advantage of the situation. Many students found out that their friends would take any opportunity for black-mail!

Not a Good Day for Pictures. Sophomore Bethany Pruett gets caught in mid-sentence in a candid shot. Students learned to be wary of friends with cameras.

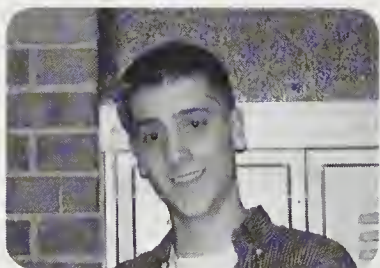

PDA???

"I think a little hug or kiss is sweet, but hanging all over each other is not necessary. I don't want to see other people making out in the halls."

-- Abigail Biggs, 12th

"Those guys studly enough to have a girlfriend should feel free to exhibit their feelings in public."

-- Terrence Nowlin, 12th

"I think that it is unnecessary to display affection during school. Affection should be saved for private moments at home."

-- Cyndi Shrewsbury, 10th

Did You See Couples in The Hall

What?

At the beginning of each school year, students are required to read from the PCHS student handbook. One of the rules blatenly states that students are not allowed any more physical contact than holding hands. Teachers are even sent to patrol the halls during breaks, before school, and on lunches. Why then, is it that one of the most common sights in the halls of PCHS is couples hugging, kissing, and even groping each other? Are the teachers blind to these students, or are students simply smarter than the average patrol teacher?

Some teachers are notorious for being on "PDA Patrol." For instance, Mr. Mike Weber can often be heard in the hallways, making remarks such as, "Hey, Joe! At the end of your arms are hands, and I can't see them!" One lesson students quickly learn is that they cannot stand outside Mrs. Debbie Blackwell's room, hugging on their girlfriend or boyfriend, and expect to get away with it. Other policing teachers include Mr. Stephen Henderson, Mrs. Barbara Pendleton, and Mr. Dean East. Teachers often send students to the office for public displays of affection and breech of the student handbook. Many students get detention, banned from the halls for multiple offenses, or get chaperones to walk students from class to class. One ex-PDA addict said, "It is complete embarrassment! If you don't get sent up, you get horrible nicknames that stick around for a long time!"

Despite the threat of being sent up, many students found that school was the only time that they could see their boyfriend or girlfriend, and made the most of the limited time between classes and on lunches.

Here Comes Mrs. Blackwell! Stephanie Shelor and Chris Halsey take a few minutes in the hall to say, "Good Morning." Couples could be seen in every hall, regardless of the teachers present.

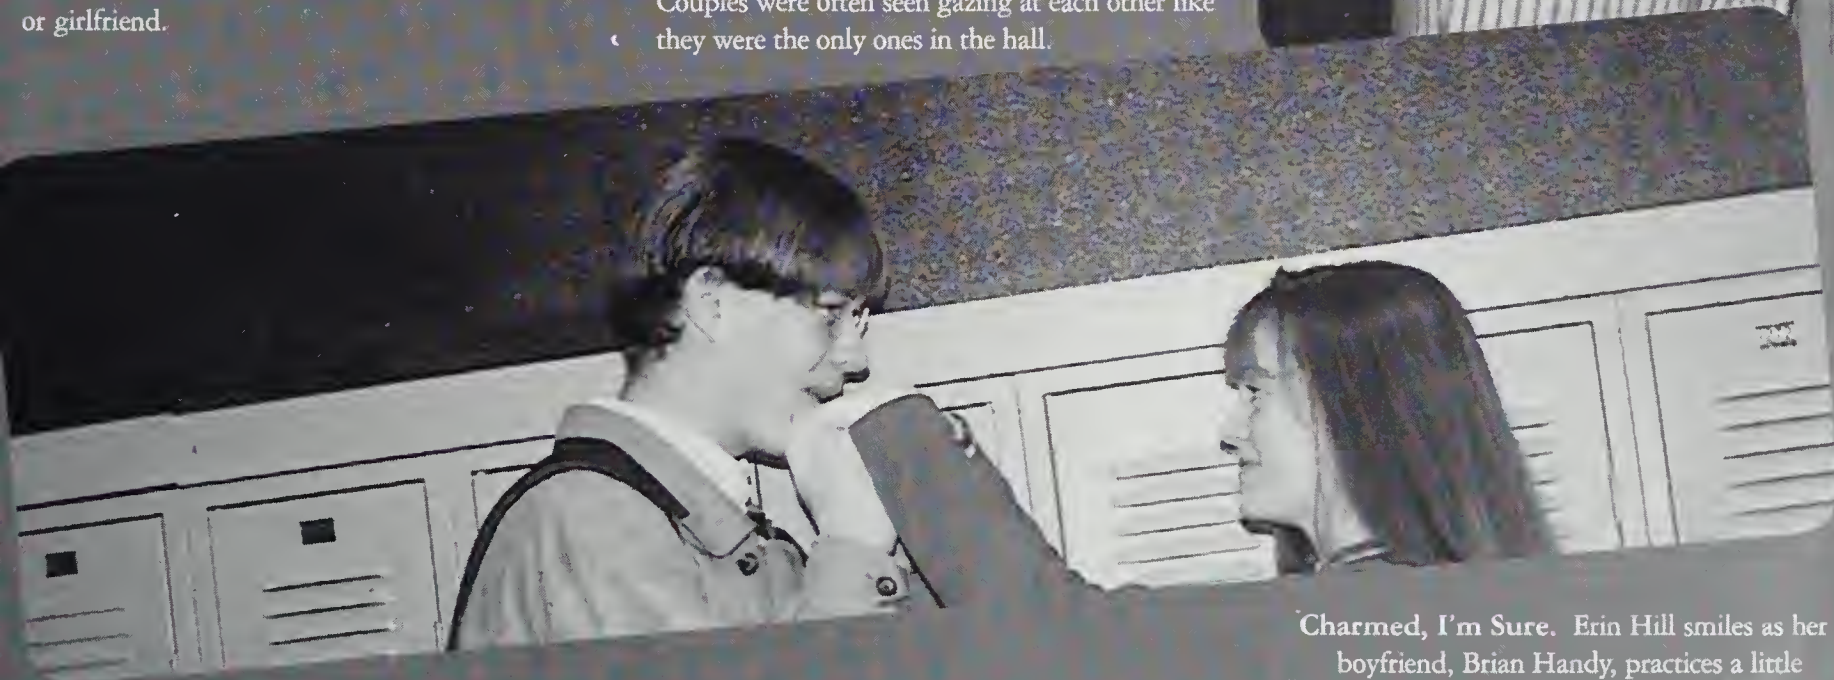

That Tickles! Fallon Benfield and Jacob Seay seem to be enjoying their brief moment together. Students learned to make the most of the time they had together.

What Do You Mean, Hand Holding Only?
Terri Scott and Jesse Combs snuggle during their lunch period. Lunch was another great time to spend quality moments with a boyfriend or girlfriend.

Listen to This! Bo Royall and Leigh Reynolds give each other a morning hug before class. Couples were often seen gazing at each other like they were the only ones in the hall.

Charmed, I'm Sure. Erin Hill smiles as her boyfriend, Brian Handy, practices a little chivalry. During the busy school day, it was rare to see a guy take a moment to open a door for his lady.

Get a Little Closer! Students at the Virginia Governor's School for Medicine take a break from daily activities to pose in their scrubs.

How Did Your Original Expectations Differ from the Actual Experience?

"When I first arrived, I thought I would spend the entire month homesick; that I wouldn't get close with anyone there. After about 24 hours everyone opened up to one another, and it was almost as hard leaving my friends as leaving my family the first day!" --Andrea Bowman

"I expected it to be fun, but the actual experience blew my mind. It was the greatest summer of my life." --Carter Deekens

"I never expected it to be so great! I thought that I would be working all the time, but there were ample opportunities to hang out with friends." --Joni Dellenback

"I was expecting it to be very strict. When I got there I liked the amount of time spent dancing and the time spent on other relaxed mind enriching class." --Abby Rogers

"I was actually dreading Governor's School; I figured it would be boring and I wouldn't meet anyone. Thankfully, it was just the opposite." --Sybil Slate

Would You Recommend Governor's School to a Friend?

"Absolutely, Governor's School was an incredible experience. I made tons of close friends that live throughout Virginia, and learned to survive without my parents!" --Andrea Bowman

"I would recommend Governor's School to anybody who likes to have fun, and wants to meet people who share the same interest as you." --Carter Deekens

"Most definitely! It was the best experience of my life. I would go back if I had the chance to." --Joni Dellenback

"Definitely. There is no way to tell your Governor's School experience to people and expect them to appreciate it." --Abby Rogers

"Definitely, it was an awesome experience." --Sybil Slate

It Has to Be Just Right. Sybil Slate works diligently on an art project. Drawing was just one of the many activities that students of the Virginia Governor's School for the Visual and Performing Arts participated in each day.

In the summer before their senior year, five Patrick County High School students attended Governor's School in various parts of Virginia. Each one of them had the idea that they would go to the program to enrich their learning in a particular subject. However, they had no idea they would have so much fun. Andrea Bowman, Carter Deekens, Joni Dellenback, Abby Rogers, and Sybil Slate all applied and were accepted to represent PCHS at Governor's School.

Andrea Bowman went to the Governor's Spanish Academy in Staunton at the Virginia School for the Deaf and Blind. Andrea said that Governor's School "greatly strengthened my use of the Spanish language." Carter Deekens spent his month in Lynchburg, at the Governor's School for Math, Science, and Technology. He stated, "The best part about Governor's School was getting to know some amazing people throughout the state of Virginia." From June 26 to August 7, Joni Dellenback could be found at the Virginia Governor's School for Medicine at the Medical College of Virginia. She spent most of her day in the hospital, working in surgery, pediatric emergency, and hematology and oncology. Abby Rogers passed four weeks of her summer at the Virginia Governor's School for the Visual and Performing Arts, located at the University of Richmond. She cited her day as being hectic, dancing from 8:30 until 12:00, then a second course from 1:30 to 3:00, followed by explorations until 5:00 and a nightly activity at 7:00 or 8:00. Sybil Slate also went to the Visual and Performing Arts Governor's School, but she was chosen for her art work.

Governor's School definitely had a positive effect on the students who attended. Andrea Bowman said, "Not only is it an honor, but a wonderful opportunity to learn, have fun, and meet new people." Joni Dellenback added, "The rewards from this program are endless." When asked if she would recommend Governor's School to a friend, Abby Rogers declared, "It is something you have to experience for yourself. It is definitely worth it!" Carter Deekens voiced his opinion about Governor's School, saying, "I strongly urge ANYBODY who has this tremendous opportunity to seize it and make the best of it."

Singin' In the Rain! Sybil Slate and her Governor's School friends take a break to enjoy the rain. Governor's School was not only about learning, but also about making friends.

More Than Just Spirit

Homecoming

Homecoming 1998 has come and gone, but it is a night, and a week, that will not be forgotten. The school spirit displayed by the students of PCHS was abundant, and the excitement during and after the match with Fieldale-Collinsville was exhilarating. The assembly set the stage for a great game and an enjoyable dance.

A major part of Homecoming week is the dress-up days. Each day has a different theme, and winners were chosen by the Homecoming Committee. The week began on Monday, October 5, with Twin Day. Tuesday was deemed Favorite Decade Day, and Wednesday was P.J. Day. Thursday's theme of Crazy Hair was a new one, and provided the student body and faculty with many laughs. Friday followed the PCHS tradition as Green & Gold Day. As well as the dress-up days, SCA sponsored a locker decorating contest. Also, the Varsity Football Cheerleaders judged homeroom cheers, door decorations, and banners.

The game and the dance were the highlights of the week. The game was a real crowd pleaser.

The PCHS football team performed well, and pulled out a win. In the end, the score came to 28-7. An added bonus of the game was the announcement that Aji Dixon was seventeen yards away from a thousand yard season.

Aji seemed to be on fire Homecoming night, as he was crowned Homecoming King during half-time. His queen, crowned by the reigning 1997 Queen, Giselle Batchellor, was Christy Chaney. The senior class was represented by Ashly Johnson, Sybil Slate, Candice Puckett, Christy Chaney, Samatha Hall, Daniel Hill, Patrick Pascale, Terry Plaster, Jon Dellenback, and Aji Dixon. Juniors were Angel Reynolds and Suzie Rusmisl. Sophomores, Kathy Aldrich and Leigh Reynolds. Freshman, Amy Kornett and Charlotte Marshall. Subfreshmen were Kelly Epperson and Melissa Payne.

Homecoming 1998 was a big success. SCA President Terrence Nowlin said, "School spirit was even greater this year than it has been in past years. Our greatest success was the assembly."

1...2...3...4! Mrs. April Pendelton assists drum major Sarah Taylor in directing the band at the Homecoming assembly. The band provided great support at the assembly and throughout the football season.

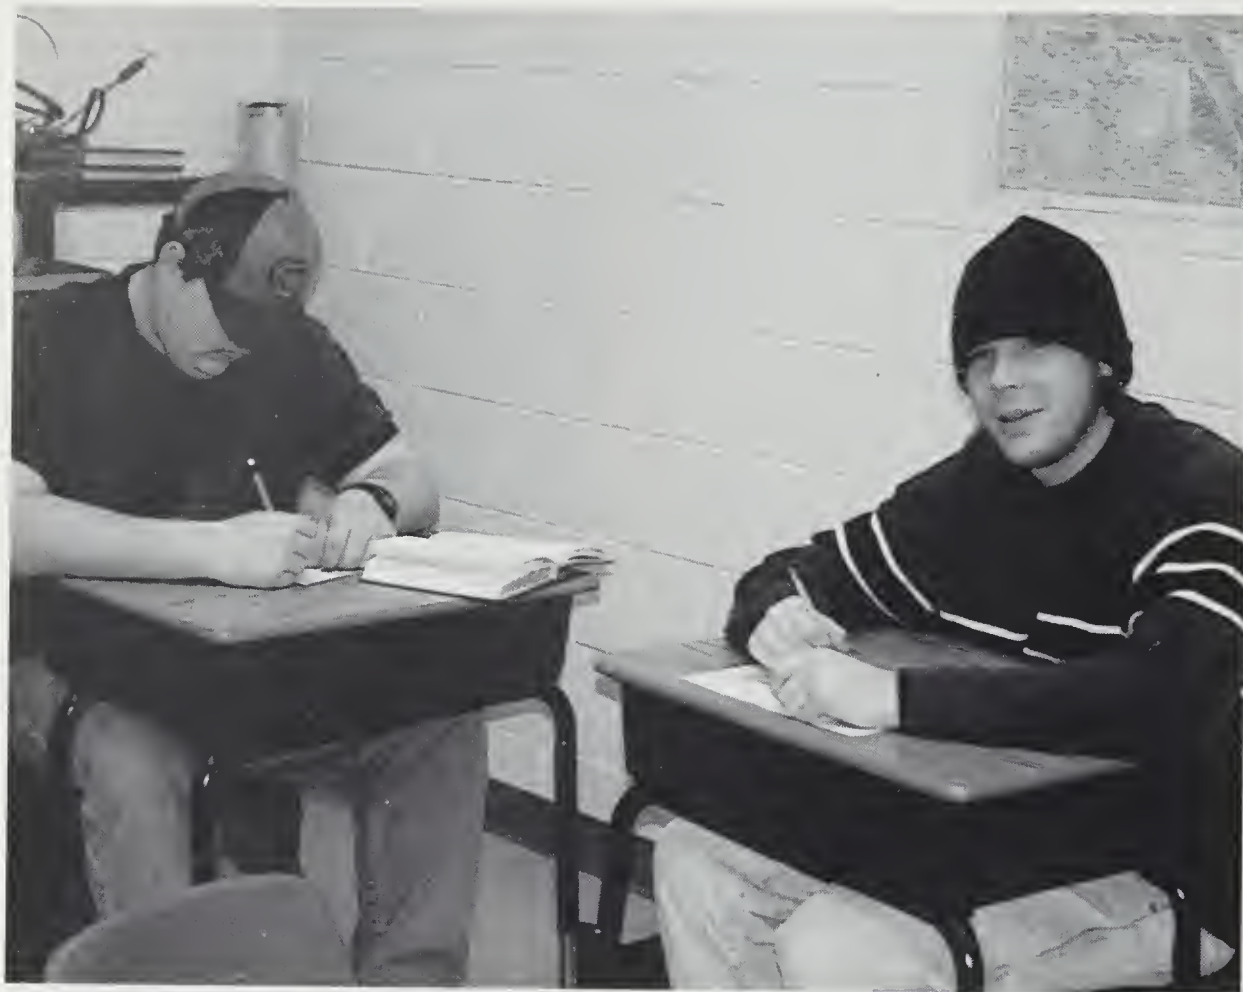

All Hail the Royalty! Homecoming Royalty Christy Chaney and Aji Dixon pose, donning their new crowns. The entire school voted on Homecoming court, and though the decision was difficult, the seniors were well represented.

Do the Swim! Clarinet players Brooke Anderson and Amy C. Martin perform "the swim." The Patrick County Marching Band took many awards with their show "Doin' Time 'Till '99."

Field Goal! Sophomore Kathy Aldrich proudly displays the hair style that won the title of Craziest Hair. Homecoming week was full of interesting looks, including this hair-do.

Don't Interrupt Us! Andrew McVicker and Scott Church work on schoolwork during their day at Q.U.E.S.T. Most students found Q.U.E.S.T. to be a better learning environment for them.

Could You Repeat That? The student looks intent on learning the subject in question. Q.U.E.S.T. helped students to focus less on social concerns and more on academic concerns.

Quest for Knowledge

Q.U.E.S.T. School

During the 1997-1998 school year, Patrick County High School administrators developed a new system of teaching for high school students. In 1998-1999, Q.U.E.S.T. was still a fairly new facility at Patrick County High School. It was centered around the idea of alternative education; the same format of a high school course with a different procedure for learning.

Q.U.E.S.T. was a special school. Teachers felt privileged to teach students and enjoyed their jobs thoroughly. Teachers enjoyed having the attention from the students in an environment where extra concerns were not present. Q.U.E.S.T. was based on the idea that high school should be a relaxed environment that is easier to learn in. By having small classes, teachers eliminated the typical problems of high school: too much emphasis put on social concerns and not enough on academic concerns. Q.U.E.S.T. helped students to do their best in a better environment.

That's Interesting... David Azarra studies his text book and looks very involved. Q.U.E.S.T. gave students a chance to learn at their own pace without the normal distractions of high school.

"I've been here at QUEST for two years. I like QUEST because I can concentrate better in the small classes. I also enjoy the students, and the teachers are superb."

-- Andrew McVicker

"Teaching at QUEST can be and is very rewarding. When I look at the kids who have been with us for a year and a half, I see so much progress both in social skills and in academic attitudes."

-- Elizabeth Warren

Quick, Snap the Picture! Felicia Williams and Danielle Ferris take a moment's break from class to pose for a picture. Q.U.E.S.T. school was as much about building social skills as building academic skills.

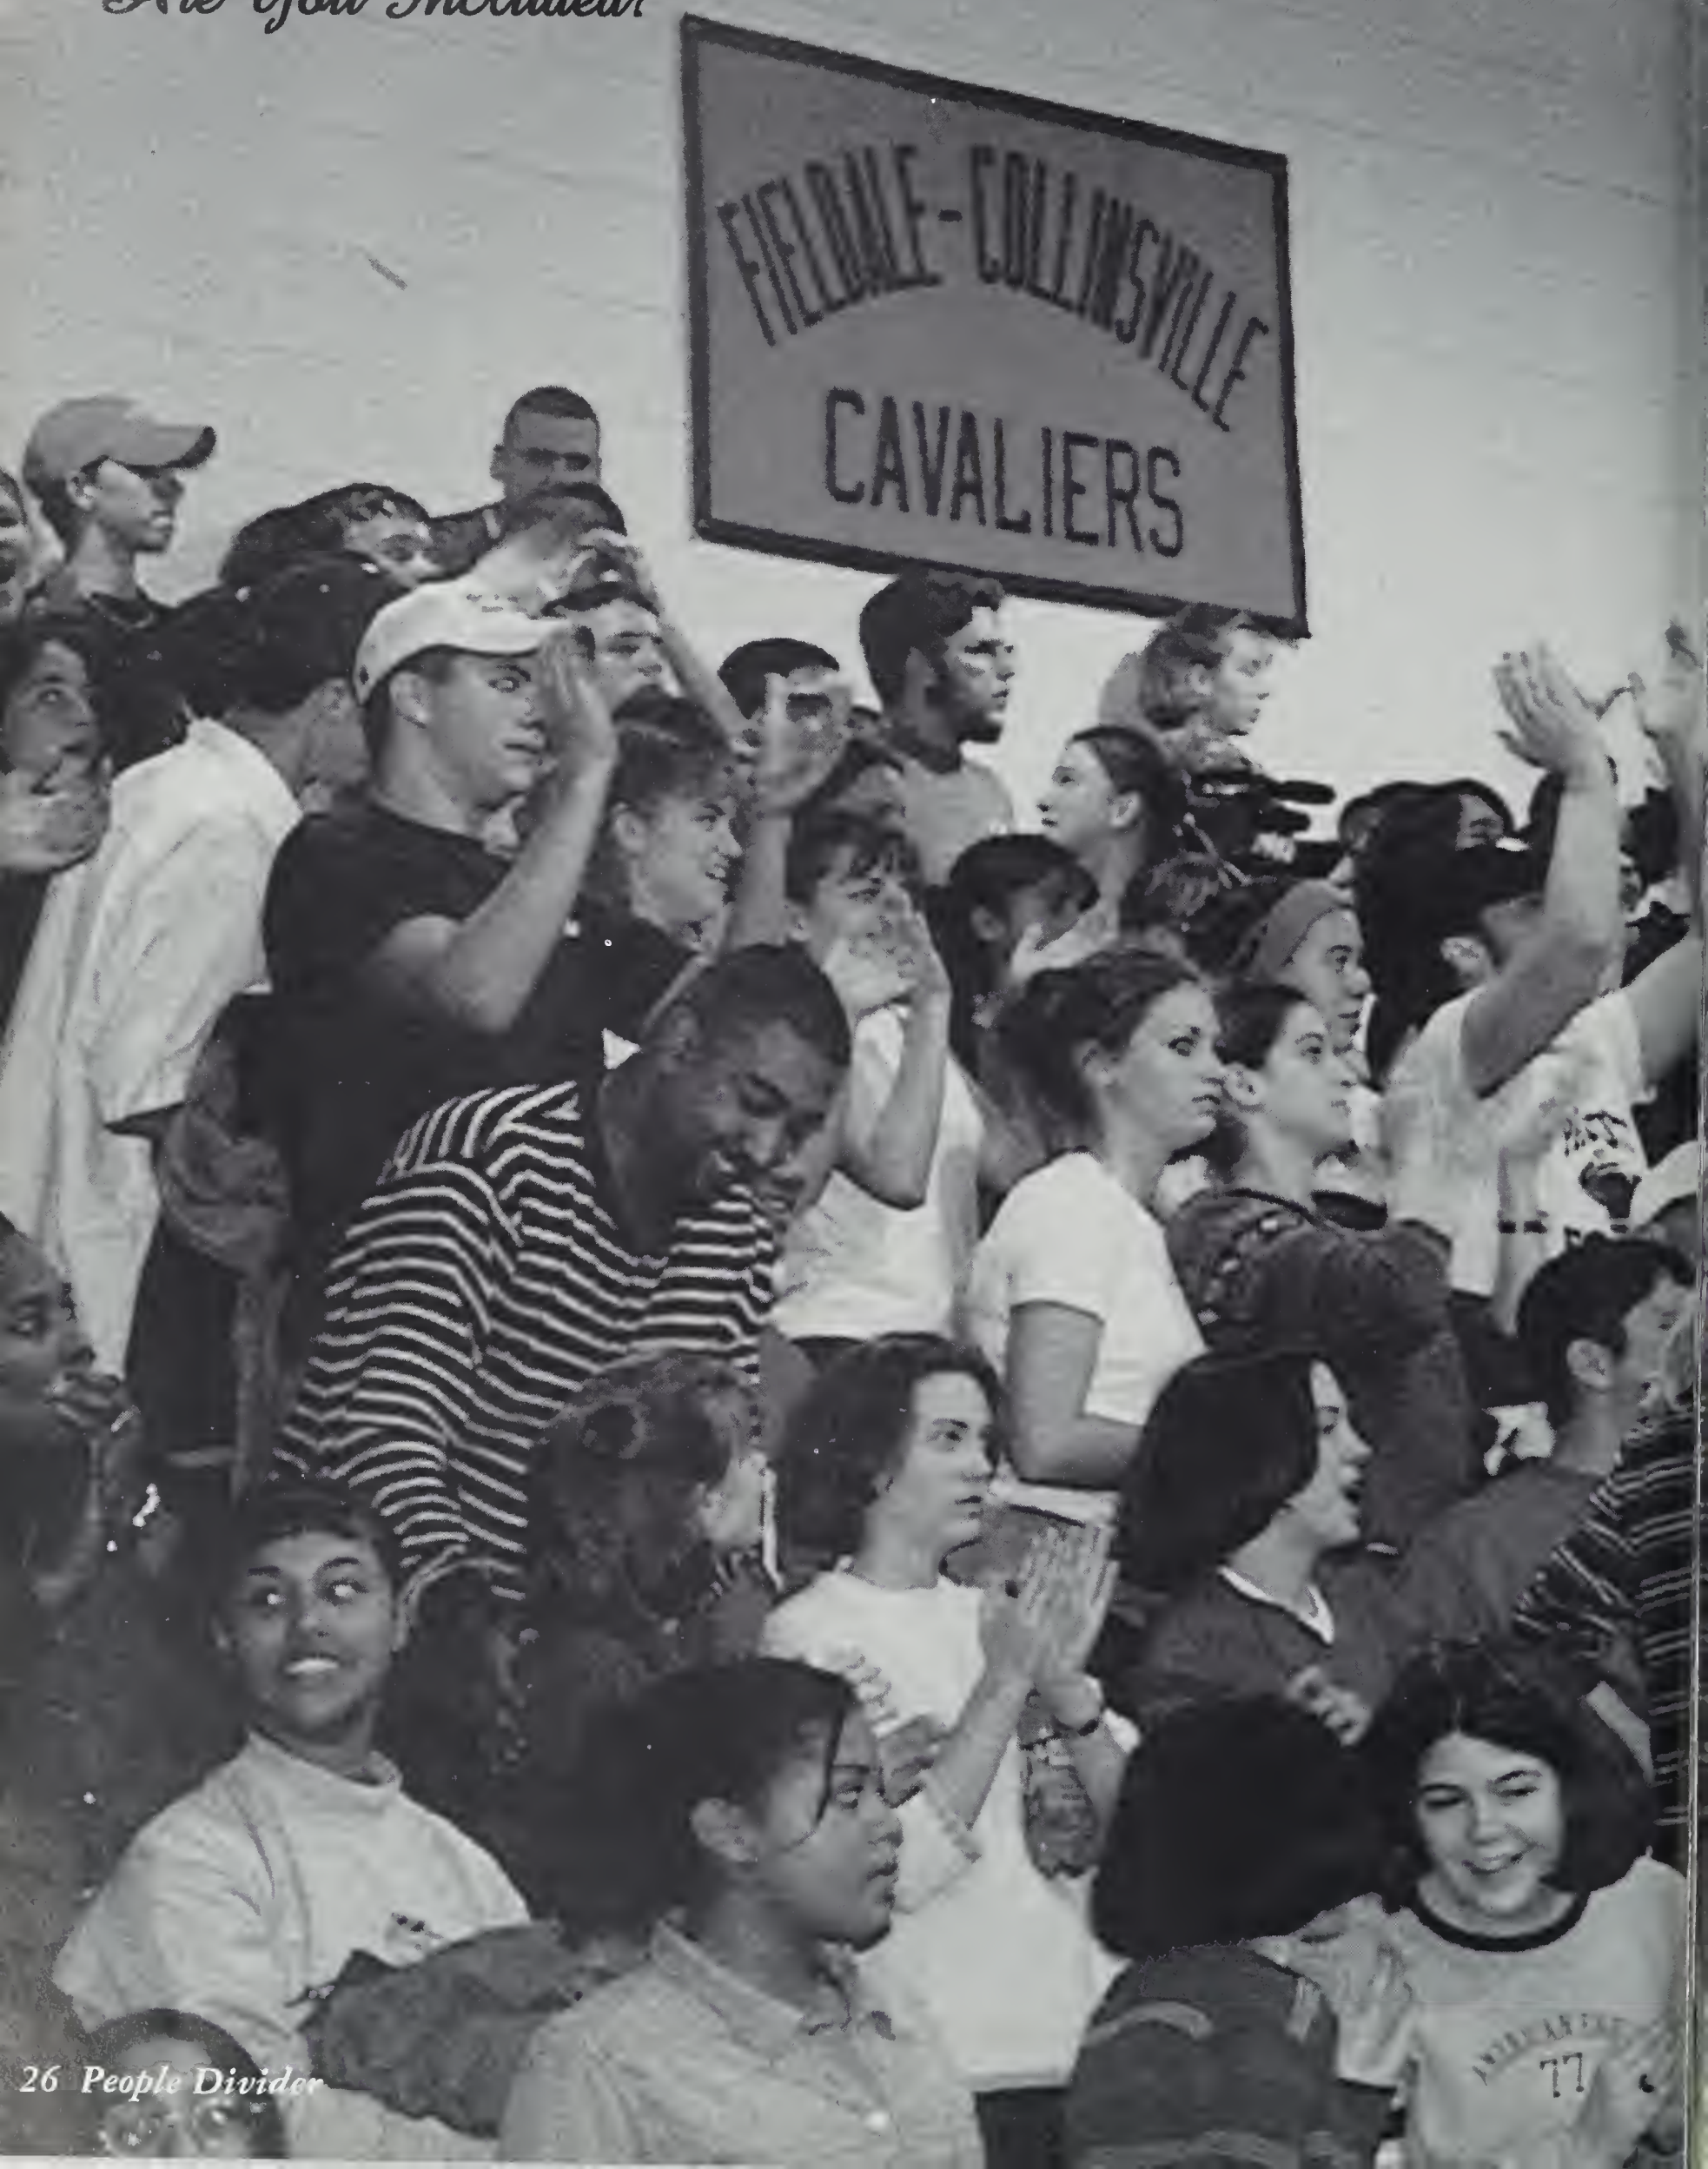

Now, Pay Attention! Mrs. Clark demonstrates a math problem to her students. Teachers at Q.U.E.S.T. school quickly learned how to keep students' attention while teaching.

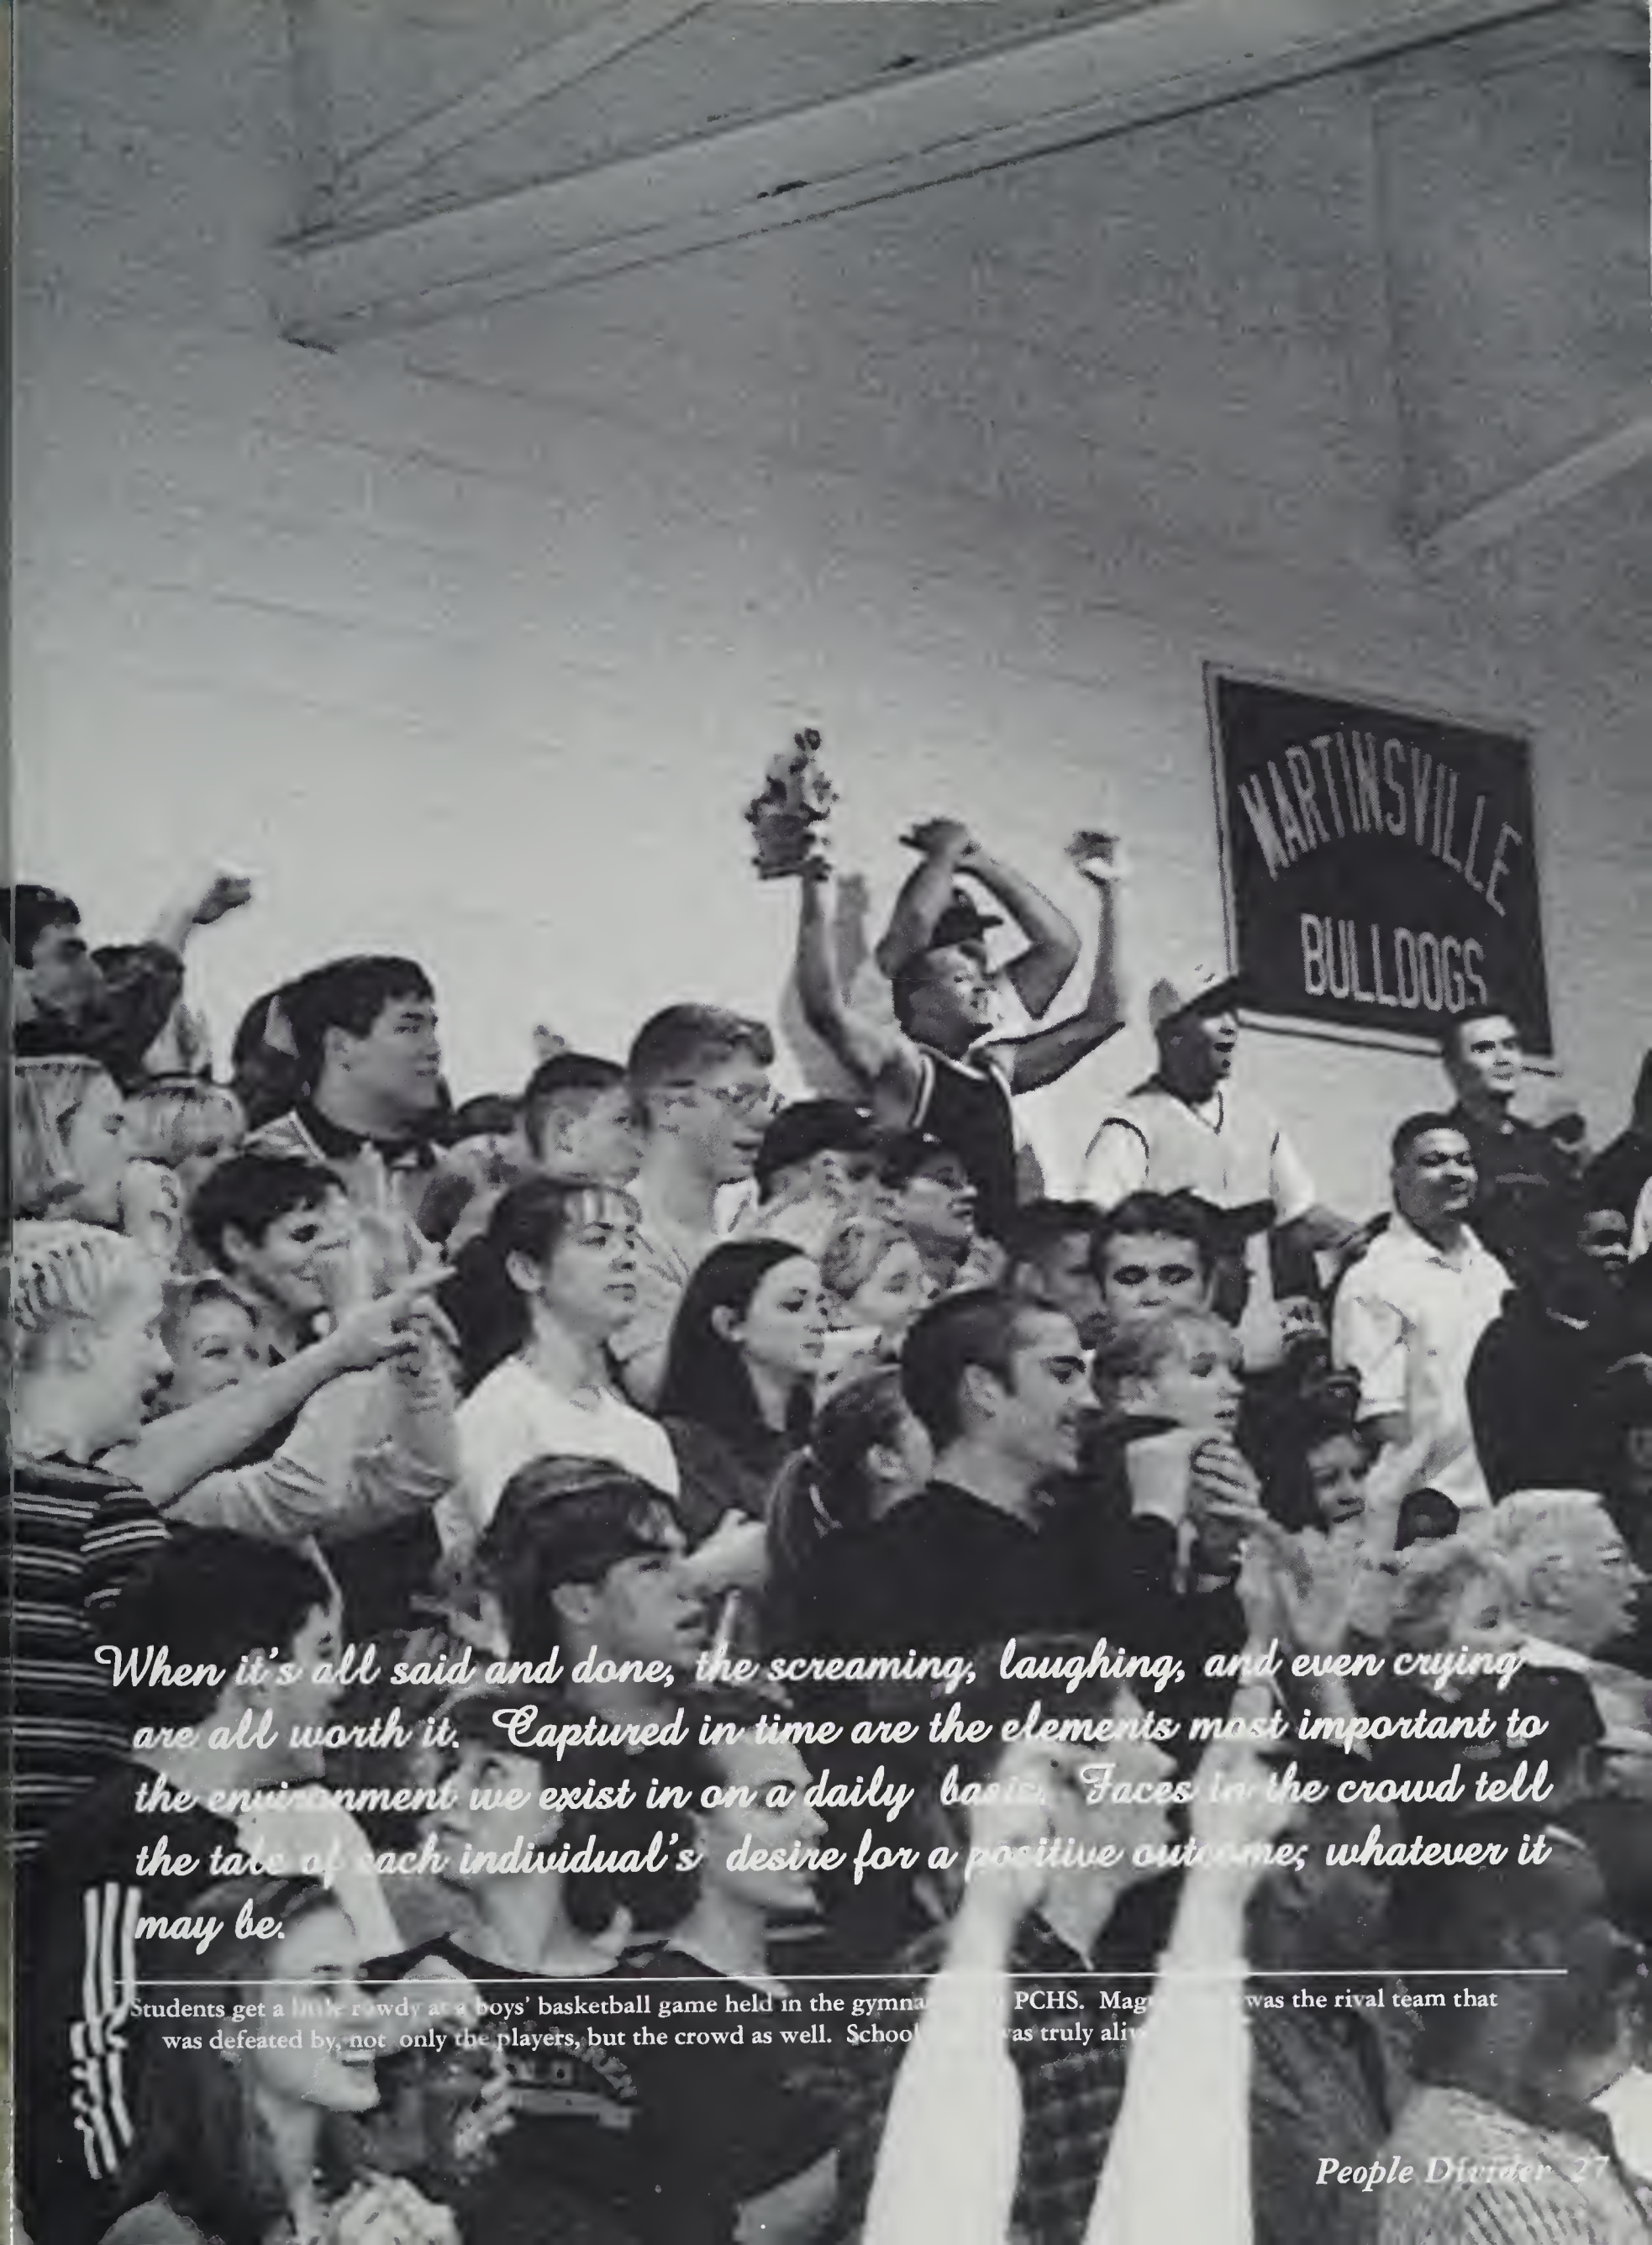

Oh, I Get It! Q.U.E.S.T. students take notes on the current lecture. Q.U.E.S.T. harbored a more relaxed environment that made it easier for students to concentrate.

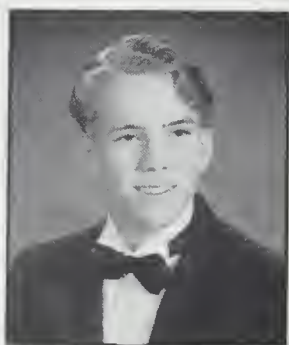

Are You Included?

When it's all said and done, the screaming, laughing, and even crying are all worth it. Captured in time are the elements most important to the environment we exist in on a daily basis. Faces in the crowd tell the tale of each individual's desire for a positive outcome, whatever it may be.

Students get a little rowdy at a boys' basketball game held in the gymnasium of PCHS. Mag... was the rival team that was defeated by, not only the players, but the crowd as well. School... was truly alive.

Senior Privileges

It may not seem fair now, but just wait until it's your turn.

When seniors were asked what the best thing was about being a senior, senior privileges were the most common reply. Senior Katrina Fulcher quotes, "When I was an underclassman, senior privileges didn't really matter but now that I'm a senior it rocks!"

With so many senior privileges it was hard to choose just one favorite. Seniors Melissa Smith liked having a priority in the lunch line because it gave you more time to hang with your pals. The senior doors also helped senior get into the cafeteria quicker because you didn't have to push your way through the rest of the student body. Being able to park in the upper level of the parking lot made getting to school faster and less tiresome, because you did not have to walk as far. Being able to go in the courtyard was another big favorite. Abby Rogers said, "Getting to hang in the courtyard is my favorite senior privilege because it's nice to get in the sun and fresh air every once in a while!"

With all these senior privileges underclassman had lots of things to look forward to when becoming a senior.

Excuses

Everyone has used a silly excuse throughout their life. Either if it was for a sibling, friend, teacher, boyfriend, or girlfriend. It was not foreign. Jay Anderson, a freshmen, says that his best excuse is, "Hey Mom, I promise that I will get it done later on!"

Excuses were the best ways to get out of sticky situations. Either if it was because your locker got jammed, the dog ate it, someone in your family got hurt, or because maybe you were just too tired, everybody had one.

Many people used excuses frequently, but they could get someone in lots of trouble. Excuses were used to get out of homework, chores, why you were late for a date, maybe why you can not babysit this weekend, etc., etc. Dustin Cooper quotes, "I use excuses the most when I am trying to get out of studying or homework." Most students think that they are pretty handy but when parents, friends, and teachers hear your strange excuse, they usually do not seem to believe it.

Now let's just face it, excuses have always been used and will continue to be used. Even President Clinton has used a few. However everyone should live a life in such a way that excuses are kept to a minimum.

Ha Ha Ha! Sophomore, Timmy Penn, laughs hilariously at Junior, Nicole Hill, while she makes funny jokes towards Juniors, Kayla Hill and Chris Penn during lunch. Many students were found out in the hallway picking on each other and cracking jokes.

Driving

It was the day you longed for oh so long. It was the day of your sixteenth birthday, the day you received your license. The privilege of driving was a freedom most students longed for even in elementary school. Some viewed driving as a ticket off the bus, while others looked at it as a way to get away from parents. Sophomores especially got "driving fever," because that was when most students turned sixteen. Sophomore Gerren Carter said, "I couldn't wait to get my license so I could drive myself places instead of my mom taking me."

With driving also came a huge responsibility. You had to be responsible enough to make your seat belt "click" and obey the speed limit even when they were tempted by being late for school, work, or even an important date. Senior, Carter Deekens, quoted, "I try to be a safe and responsible driver at all times but sometimes beautiful women distract me." Students who bought cars also had a financial responsibility which meant having to get a job for many students. The newly enforced driving rule also made it harder for students to drive to school. You had to pass a driving skills test with a one hundred average before you were allowed the privilege to park in the high school parking lot. Student drivers also had to have a permission slip signed by their parents before they were allowed to drive other students home. The punishment for disobeying this rule could have resulted in the loss of your driving privileges.

Whether it was to go cruising, to go somewhere important like school or work, or just to get to your best friends house, driving was a privilege once you got you could not do without.

Many, Many Talents

Glenda Hylton
 Yulanda Hylton

Is That The Last One? Sophomore, Nicole Marot, uses one of her talents in the classroom. Many students at PCHS took a part in different academic decisions.

Most students at Patrick County High School were multi-talented in many enjoyed activities. A talented student was one that was defined to have a natural power. Many were talented in academics, athletics, and/or music.

Students at PCHS have had many opportunities to perform their talents to many people. Seniors Jennifer McKinney (pianist), Sarah Taylor (vocalist), and Sophomore Becky Breen (flute player), played and sung the popular theme song from Titanic, "My Heart Will Go On," in front of many audiences including talent shows and weddings.

Academic and athletic teams performed their talents almost everyday. Students put in hard hours of practice after school to increase their abilities to bring home many awards. Junior, Beverly Beasley used her talents with computers to help people all over the world.

Stephanie Shelor quoted, "One of my talents besides volleyball is listening to other peoples problems." It didn't matter if your talent was running, solving world peace, or being able to put on great shows, they were still greatly appreciated by everyone.

Snow Days

When students woke up and looked out their closest window, it was no surprise to see snow on the ground during the winter. A few snow days here and there didn't bother many students. An occasional mid-week break or an extended weekend was not uncommon.

Unfortunately, students were more than likely stuck inside. Students counted on that to get extra sleep that homework took away. Some went sleigh-riding on well known hills in Stuart, such as the one behind Patrick County Branch Library, though many decided to sleigh on the ones right outside of their own back door. Jennifer Boyd quoted, "My favorite place to snow sled is at Joni Dellenback's house because the hill is so steep you practically fly down it!"

Students spent their time doing different things. Even though they appreciated these days, they were unfortunately tacked on to the end of the school year.

How pretty! As many snow flakes fall, students sit inside enjoying their mid-week break from the normal school activities.

HABITS

Habits were a key factor in determining a person's unique personality. Although many habits were quite common, others were a bit unusual. Some habits were practiced when a person was under stress or nervous, but many were practiced almost constantly. Sophomore Lindsey Bryant quotes, "When I'm mad I bite my nails, usually to make frustrations go away. It doesn't help though!"

While walking around the halls of PCHS, you could see many students nervously biting their nails. This habit was commonly seen practiced while taking stressful tests. Hearing the popping of knuckles was not an unusual sound in the classroom either. People thought this was a rather annoying habit. Sophomore Amelia Feron says, "I can't stand when people pop their knuckles! It just gets on my nerves!"

A few students have their own unique habits that are rarely practiced by others. Bethany Pruett has her own habit of putting on chapstick almost constantly. Another uncommon habit was twirling your hair. Subfreshman Emily King twirled her hair as a child to help her go to sleep and still practices the habit throughout the day.

Do-de-do-de-do. Jennifer Boyd exhibits one of her habits, twirling her hair, while catching up on a homework assignment.

I bite my nails because when I play basketball they end up breaking off anyway.

High School VS. Elementary School

Most students coming from high school to elementary school were usually not sure at first, about being a high school student. They thought that being in a new place would be too different and scary. Eighth graders heard over and over about the nasty rumors of being shoved into the trash cans and told the wrong directions to class.

But, when the students came face to face with the new people, classes, and surroundings at Patrick County High School, they realized that being in the eighth grade was not so bad after all. Many new students discovered more freedom in high school, like not having to stand in long, straight lines everywhere they went or getting to choose between a better variety of food in the cafeteria. Best of all, eighth graders figured out that they had more free time during the day to socialize with their friends. Bengie Baliles quoted, "The biggest difference between elementary and high school had to be the girls." Each new student also discovered more responsibility during the year. Eighth graders had to become more organized and self-dependable. There were harder classes and much more homework, so the students had to put forth more time and hard work.

When the new high school students finally got into the swing of things, they realized that high school really was fun!!!

Everyone figured out that it was not going to be such a pain in the rear after all!!

Food and Places To Eat

The typical teenager did not have time to fix themselves something to eat for every meal. Restuarants were a quick and easy solution to this problem. Although there was not a wide variety of restaurants in Stuart, most all of them offered something different. Tony's Pizza was popular because of their variety of food ranging pasta and pizza to subs and burgers. Sophomore Tamara Overby quotes, "Tony's is the best restaurant in Stuart. It may not look too good from the outside but the food is great!" Little Ceasers' menu consisted of mainly pizza and breadsticks. Subway was especially popular by picky eaters because you could always get your sub just the way you liked it. They also provided seven subs with six grams of fat or less for the health fanatics. Mayo River Seafood had mainly seafood but you could also get a few meats like chicken or steak. Hardees, being the only major chain fast food restuarant, stayed busy with students dropping by to grab a burger and fries on the run. Junior Jamie Hall, who works at Hardees says, "Workin at Hardees is cool because it's a gook way to earn extra money." Hardees also provided a quick breakfast before school to keep your stomach quiet until lunch.

Even with the shortage of restuarants in Stuart one could usually find about any food you were craving.

Helping The School Out

Students with career apprenticeship were a huge factor during the school day. Without these people the school could not function on time and be as productive as it was.

The career apprenticeship students who worked in the office had many errands to run almost constantly. The people gathered the roster from all the classrooms every morning. They also distributed the absentee list to all the teachers. Office assistants had the responsibility of delivering notes to students whose parents may have called during the day. If you received flowers or balloons it was the office assistants who delivered these to you.

Guidance assistants also helped the school run a lot smoother. They often had the tedious task of making sure all the information on test sheets were bubbled in. Bethany Pruett says, "I like being in guidance because I like helping with the schools work and the people in guidance."

Parking lot attendants had the job of keeping our school a safe school zone. They had to check all the cars in the parking lot for parking permits and make sure all cars belonged to students. They had to inform administrators if strangers tried to come onto school grounds. Parking lot attendants were also the people who prevented other students from skipping. When asked about being a parking lot attendant Robbie Cobb said, "It's an easy job and it's fun because I don't have to be in class for a period."

Vocational assistants had some of the same jobs as office workers. They had to assort mail into teachers boxes and answer the phone. They also took messages and delivered them when needed.

Classroom assistants and tutors were a big help to teachers. They could help struggling students when the teacher could not give them their undivided attention. Tamara Overby quotes, "I love being an assistant because it gives me a great chance for experience and helping others."

They also ran errands so the teachers would not have to leave their class alone.

The janitor's assistants helped keep the school a clean learning environment. They were often seen taking out the trash or sweeping the floors. This helped lighten the janitor's work load of keeping Cougar Country a good school zone.

Although these jobs were sometimes taken for granted, the career apprenticeship students were very much appreciated. Without them it would be impossible to get through a day at PCHS.

Hoop It Up

"We had a great year. Our team really grew in maturity and skill level during the season. We played well as a team and key players stepped up into their roles to lead the team to success," stated Girls' Basketball Assistant Coach April Pendleton.

The Lady Cougars enjoyed a fabulous season, advancing to the Region IV Semifinals. Head Coach Wendell Terry received Coach of the Year honors, and three Lady Cougars were recognized for All-District honors. Emily Goad made the All-Piedmont District 1st Team, Leigh Reynolds 2nd Team, and Brittany Pruett received Honorable Mention.

The Lady Cougars finished the season with an 18-8 overall record. They played two very exciting post-season games in the Region IV Playoffs. With the support of a strong home crowd, the Lady Cougars mounted a huge 4th quarter comeback against the Lebanon Pioneers and pulled out a 59-48 victory.

This win qualified the team for the semifinals. They traveled to Grundy and faced a tough Golden Waves team. Though they fought a hard battle, Grundy pulled away for a 70-55 win.

Coach Pendleton summarized by saying, "Our comeback win against Lebanon was definitely the high point of the season. We're all very proud of the girls' effort and work ethic this season."

Let's Get It In. Coach Wendell Terry draws in the huddle to discuss the Lady Cougars' strategy in the late moments of a very close game.

WINNING WAYS

"We had a very successful JV Girls Basketball team this year. They gained a lot of confidence and their skill improved greatly. Each person displayed their versatility and their ability," stated JV Girls Basketball coach Grandy Biggs.

The JV Lady Cougars had an outstanding season going 13-7 and advancing to the first ever JV Girls Championship game. They went 7-3 in the district, good for second place overall. The team was composed of three freshmen and ten sub-freshmen.

Coach Biggs commented, "Starting out in the summer, we pulled our team together for Liberty University Summer Basketball Camp. This got the new players integrated into our team and began the process of creating a team chemistry and unity. The girls really worked hard and played well as a team and as individuals."

The JV Lady Cougars never gave up in any situation. This showed in several comeback and down to the wire wins. They showed great poise in these close games.

Coach Biggs said, "The girls would never quit in any position. We had some great wins at Martinsville and at Radford, coming from behind to win. The girls were open to suggestions and would try anything we suggested to improve their games. Having Coach Keith Gunter along was a great asset because of his expertise and knowledge. We really prepared the girls for the Varsity level."

Top of the Key. Sub-Freshman Heather Hill reverses the ball back to the point guard. The JV Girls team concentrated on the basic skills of the game like ball handling and passing, which led them to success this season.

MAKING THE PLAYOFF RUN

"This team did a great job of coming together in pressure situations. A prime example of this was in our three overtime victories. We really learned to play as a team and that was the key factor in our success," commented Varsity Football Coach Matt Versluis.

The Cougars enjoyed one of the best seasons in school history. They equaled their record from last season at 6-4 and advanced to the Region IV playoffs. The Cougars had a flare for the dramatic and close games this season, including three overtime victories.

The Cougars began the season at home against Liberty. The team had never beaten Liberty- until this season with a 21-14 overtime triumph. Then the Cougars traveled to Dan River to face the Wildcats. In another exciting game, the Cougars pulled out a two-point conversion in overtime to defeat Dan River. The Cougars returned home to face a tough Bassett team. The game was back and forth until the very end where Bassett squeaked by the Cougars 20-23. After splitting two games with a win and a loss against Chatham and Carroll County, the Cougars returned to Hooker Field to beat F-C 28-27 for Homecoming. The Cougars then picked up crucial victories over Magna Vista and Laurel Park to clinch a playoff birth.

Coach Versluis summarized by saying, "Making it to the playoffs for only the second time in the schools history, winning three overtime games was also a great feat. I was very proud of the way we learned to play as a team. We improved and progressed each game and we had an overall great season."

Let's Get it On! The Cougar special teams unit lines up to send out the opening kickoff against Laurel Park.

IN FULL MOTION

"We had a rebuilding year of sorts. We were young and inexperienced. Our numerous injuries didn't help us at all. Still I thought we made progress throughout the season," stated JV Football Coach Weber.

The JV Cougars were undefeated their past two seasons. Losing a large number of starters to the varsity squad, the JV team faced a reconstructing year.

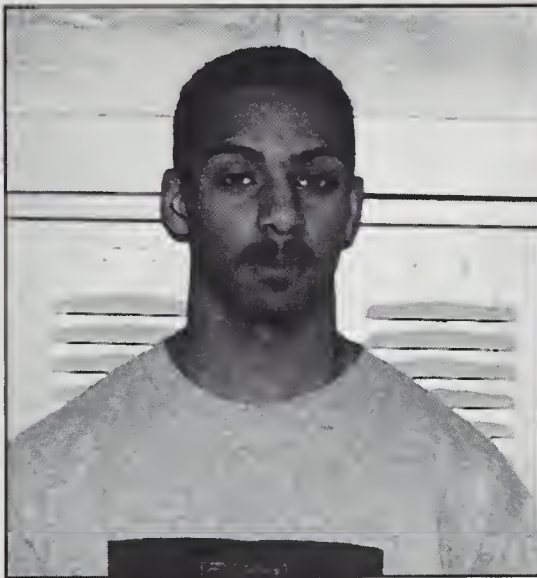

This year the JV team went back to basics, learning their positions and utilizing what resources they had. After a heartbreaking loss against Dan River in their first game, the Cougars bounced back with wins against Chatham and Bassett.

Coach Weber commented, "We had high hopes entering the season and the tight loss against Dan River was disappointing. Then we suffered some unneeded injuries. We kept fighting though and that win over Chatham was a real high point for us."

The team proved to be very versatile, learning new positions in an attempt to offset their injuries. The players simply tried to prepare themselves for the level of Varsity Football.

Coach Weber summed it all up by saying, "I saw significant improvement this season in all of our players. I'm looking forward to next season with the advancement of this year's 8th grade team and having eager new players willing to learn the game."

"We had a pretty good year, even though we fell up a little short of our goal of repeating as District Champs. We still had three players qualify for Regionals, and Wes Martin was named Co-Player of the Year. I was pleased overall," stated Golf Coach Gerald Culler about his 1998 Cougar Golf team.

The Cougars returned five starters this season. They focused on honing their skills in practice, and just playing to improve their games. At the beginning of the season, they began with a strong 2nd place showing in the Carroll County Shootout.

The Cougars only losses during the season came to eventual State Runner-up Martinsville and a loss at F-C. They went on to post an overall record of 8-3 for the year. Wes Martin, Brett Helms and Travis Plaster all qualified for the Region IV Tournament while Martin and Helms advanced to the Group AA State Tournament. Wes Martin also earned Co-Player of the Year honors in the District. Coach Culler summarized by saying, "I was very proud of the effort these guys put forth this season. We still have 4 returning starters next year, and I'm looking forward to the future."

RUNNERS: START YOUR ENGINES

"I was delighted with the Cross Country team's performance this season. I didn't exactly know what to expect from them in my first year coaching, but they exceeded any expectations I could have had. They competed well and finished well overall," commented first year Cross Country Coach Sandra Rakes.

The Cougar Cross Country team won the regular season title, but fell just short in the District meet. Juniors Dwayne Williams and Lalita Brim made the All-District team while Brim was Piedmont District Female Runner of the Year for the second consecutive year. Coach Rakes thought that the main reason for the team's success was the increased number of runners participating for the team. The team also had a great comradery and enthusiasm, pushing each other to better themselves in a competitive manner.

The Cougars were steamrolling through district competition and perennial power Bassett appeared on the schedule. In a close race, the Cougars defeated the Bengals and captured the regular season crown. The team used this win as a rallying point for the remainder of the season. Coach Rakes said, "I can't say enough about this team. They made me very proud and I look forward to next season."

WRESTLEMANIA

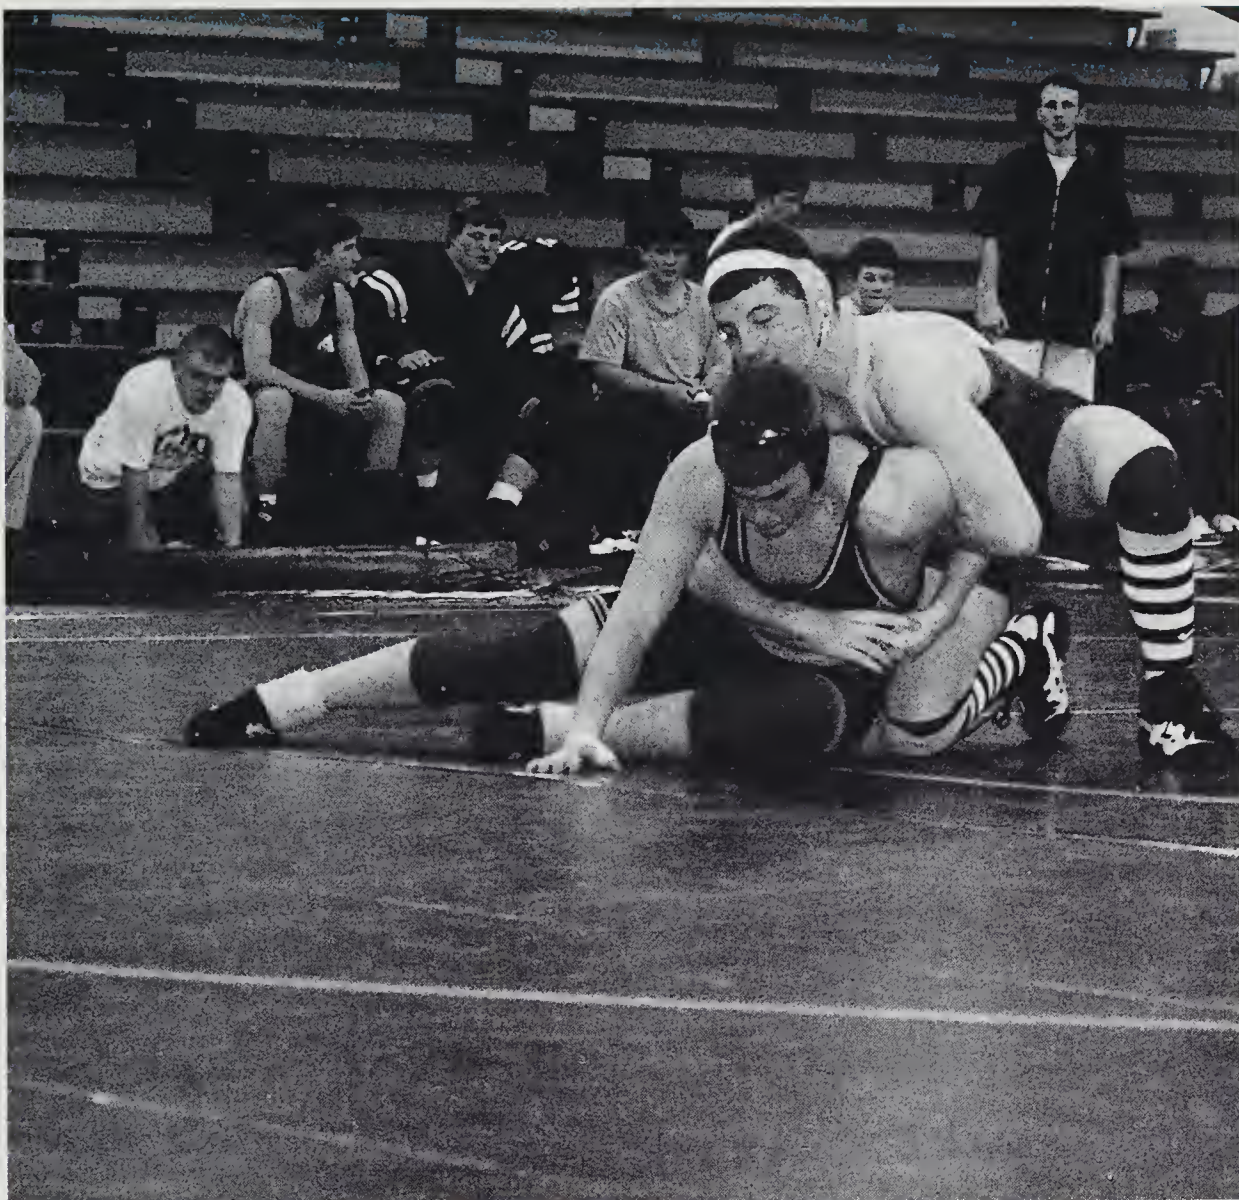

"We had a good season overall finishing undefeated for the first time ever. We just fell up short in the tournament, finishing 2nd, but we still sent 12 guys to regionals," commented Assistant Wrestling Coach Jay Goode about his Cougar Wrestling team.

The Cougars were very dominant this year, going 16-0 and wiping out each foe in their path. They went thorough their usual rigourous training and conditioning to burn off those extra pounds. Coach Goode stated, "All of the guys on the team had really good attitudes and always worked hard to achieve their goals. They each showed improvement in their skill level throughout the season."

Even though wrestling is an individual sport by nature, the Cougars always played as a team. They rallied around each other and set their sights on continuing the Patrick County Wrestling legacy of the 90's. They began the season by steamrolling district opponents with blowouts over F-C, Magna Vista, Bassett, and Laurel Park. This set up a regular season championship showdown against Martinsville. The Cougars traveled to Martinsville and pulled out a gutsy win in the last match, 34-33 to claim the title.

Coach Goode summarized with, "Coach Gammons and I were pleased all in all with the team's effort. We hope to have continuing success in the future."

"We've had an unbelievable season. We reached heights that no Patrick County team has ever reached and no one could have expected. I'm really proud of my team's effort," commented Varsity Boys' Basketball Coach Bob Burnette of his 1999 PD Champion Cougars.

This year's team put together the best season in school history with a 18-2 regular season record, a PD Regular Season Championship, and a PD Tournament championship for the first time.

Over the regular season, the Cougars cruised to a 13-0 record with impressive wins over F-C, Martinsville, and Magna Vista. Unfortunately, Laurel Park spoiled their fun in midseason. After trouncing their Piedmont foes in the remainder of the season, setting up a showdown for the PD title against Laurel Park in a special playoff game. The Cougars exacted sweet revenge against the Lancers with a 49-46 win. The Cougars also dominated the PD Tourney, capping it off with a 66-62 triumph over defending State Champion Magna Vista in the Championship game. Team members Corey Rucker and Jermaine Penn were named to the All-Piedmont District 1st team, while Wes Martin was voted to the 2nd team. Coach Burnette was also Coach of the Year.

LEARNING THE ROPES

"We had a young team, returning only four players from last year. We made consistent progress throughout the year and we did well the second half of the season. I think Coach Davis did a good job coaching us in his first year," stated freshman guard Nick Rakes about the 1999 JV Boys' Basketball team.

Coach Brad Davis brought a new format to the JV team in his first season as coach. He drilled the young team on plays seeking good execution of these plays. This provided the team with a good base to learn and consistent play on both sides of the ball. With a solid, ball-control style offense, the JV Cougars prepared themselves and learned the keys to playing on the Varsity level.

Even though their record didn't show it, the JV Cougars always supplied a strong effort. Each game they played was very competitive, going toe to toe with every team they faced. Fundamentals, execution, and effort equaled success this season for the JV Cougars.

ACE SENSATION

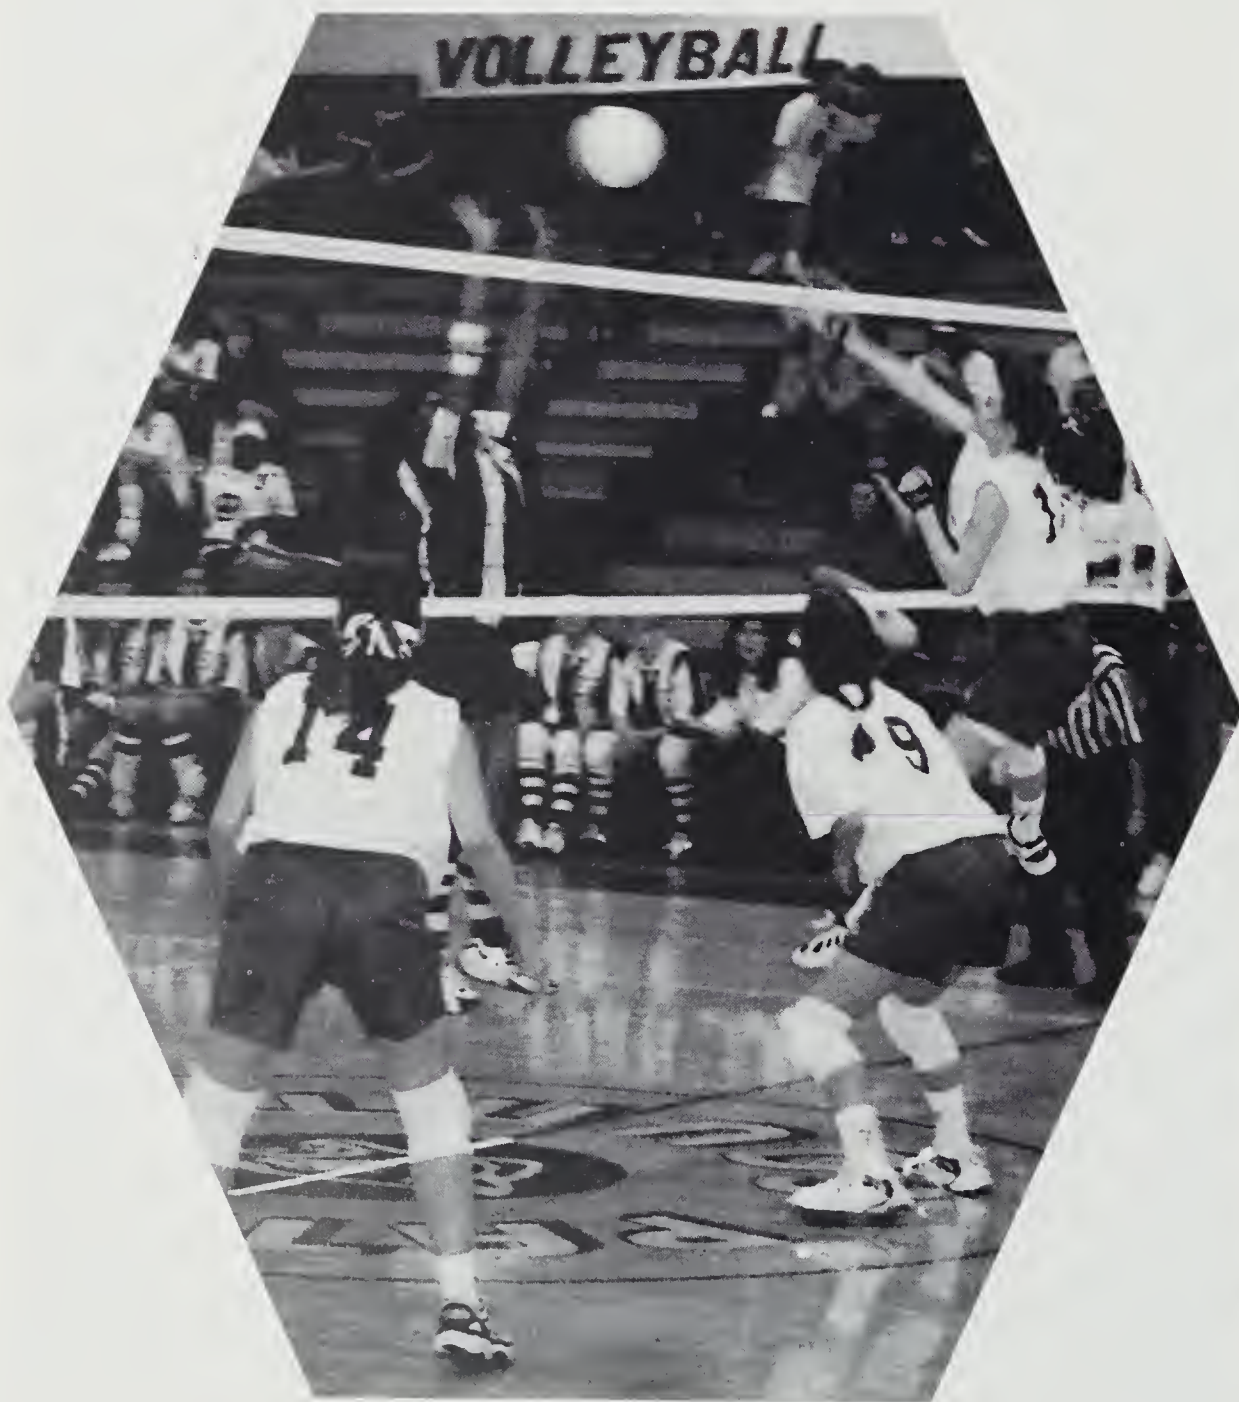

"This year we played hard in one of the most competitive districts I've seen. We had a lot of potential and we certainly were dedicated to the sport. We were very competitive and came out with a winning season," stated Varsity Girls Volleyball Coach Bidgie Buchanan.

This year's Lady Cougar Volleyball team was a very spirited, exciting, and tough team. Over the span of the season, they became more mentally prepared for the game. The coaches redefined the team defense to a more specialized, individual plan of attack. This plan focused on each girls respective strengths.

Early in the season, the team was defeated by two tremendous teams; Carroll County and Auburn. However, the Lady Cougars wouldn't lie down for these teams the 2nd time around, exacting a big win over Martinsville early in the year. This served as a rallying point for the ladies throughout the year.

Coach Buchanan summarized with, "Our senior leadership was truly vital to our success. Misty Hazelwood and Abigail Biggs set great examples for the other players. I'd like to thank them, along with my assistant coaches. This was my last year as coach, and I have so many great memories. I'm looking forward to seeing this team grow from the bleachers as a fan."

GIMME A "C"!

The team is down 17 points with 5 seconds left on the clock. The crowd is slowly dying away and suddenly out of nowhere you hear "Goooooo Cougars Go!" Even though the fans have lost all hope, a small group of dedicated athletes still have hope. Those girls cheer their school on until the very end. They are the PCHS Cheerleaders.

The high school is composed of 4 different cheerleading squads: JV, Varsity Football, Varsity Girls Basketball, and Varsity Boys Basketball. The JV squad holds tryouts at the beginning of every new school year. The Varsity squads hold tryouts at the end of every school year. The squads that are chosen are for the upcoming school year, therefore the Varsity squads help with JV tryouts.

Varsity squads travel with their teams to every game, home or away, and give the team all of their support. Many squads supported their teams in ways other than just cheering them on. They gave their players spirit bags, breakfasts, good luck balloons, and even sometimes cute toys.

Brandee Sharpe said, "Cheerleading helps to promote school spirit. I felt very privileged to be able to be involved with such a great organization."

SERVING FOR SUCCESS

"This year was a rebuilding year for us. We lost 7 seniors last year, which left us with plenty of young, unexperienced tennis players. In fact, some of our players had never played before this year, but we still finished 3rd overall in the district," stated Coach Mike Weber about his 1998 Tennis team.

The tennis team was very young this year, composed of 4 seniors, 2 juniors, 3 sophomores, 2 freshman, and a whopping 13 sub-freshman that practiced with the team. Despite the big turnout, many team members had limited practice time due to the shortage of available courts. When the entire team was able to practice, many of the older more experienced players assisted the younger ones in learning the fundamentals of the game.

Solid Strokes. Junior Jarret Clement smacks a forehand down the line in tennis practice. Although this was Jarret's first year on the team, he made great contributions.

Coach Weber addressed the topic of a large team by saying, "We had a great number of young, eager, and enthusiastic players who need experience. Our lack of facilities and a girls' team inhibited the team's development, but I still saw great ability and progress among all team members."

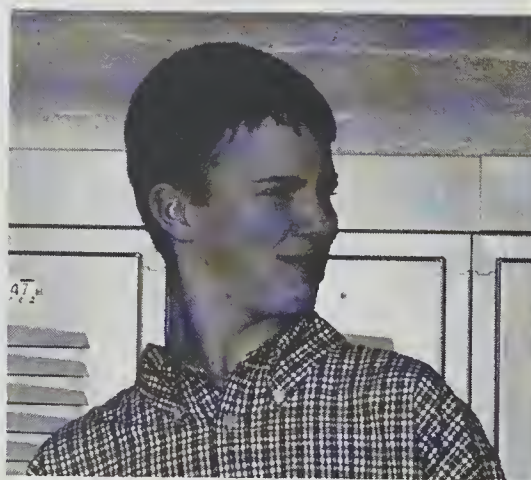

The team mainly worked on fundamental facets of the game like the serve, footwork, and basic strokes. They practiced drills and repetitious learning techniques to develop their games.

Coach Weber summarized with, "We didn't quite have the finished that we wanted, but we still had a solid finish. Defeating Martinsville twice this season was a definite highlight. I was overall fairly pleased and I have high hopes for next season."

"I was very pleased with the team's results this season. Each team member improved their technique in their respective events. I was especially proud of Travis Wimbush, who finished 5th in the state meet in his first year on the track team," commented Coach Nelson McConnell about his Track team.

The 1998 Track team had several new members this year that contributed right away to the team's success. Dwayne Williams won the 3200m run in his first year. Aaron Shelor finished 3rd in the 3200m run, and Travis Wimbush finished 5th in the state in the high jump.

During the regular season, several team members traveled to invitational tournaments as well. Lalita Brim won the 400m event at Staunton River and Travis Wimbush finished 2nd in the high jump at Appomattox. Both of these competitors qualified for the Regional competition. DOMINATING PRESENCE

This year's Varsity Lady Cougar softball team completely annihilated each and every team that entered their path to the Group AA State Playoffs. With an unblemished district record, no one even came close to reaching the Lady Cougars this season.

This year's coaches were Ricky Vernon, who was named Piedmont District Coach of the Year, and Kendra Weber. Coach Vernon commented, "We had an outstanding year. The girls worked hard, accomplished many goals that they had set for themselves, and most importantly, learned to work as a team."

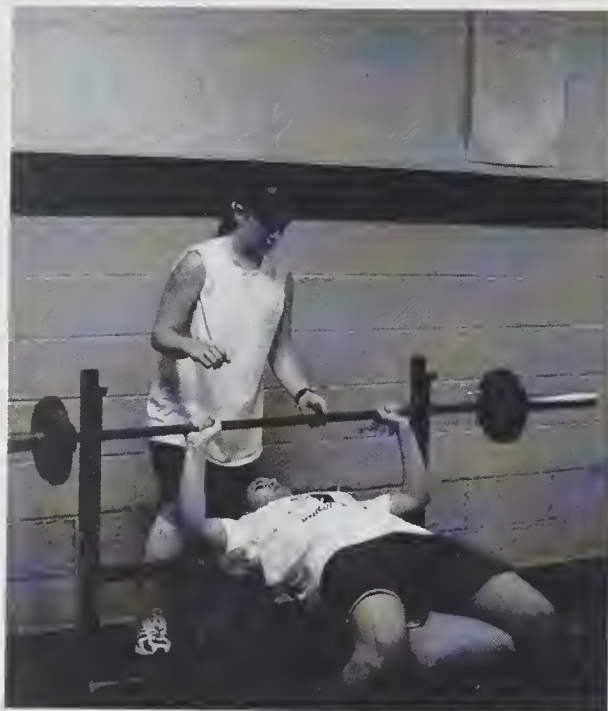

Several Lady Cougars earned additional individual accolades as well. Senior Erin Wilson was named Piedmont District Player of the Year for the second consecutive year.

The Lady Cougars also had several All-Piedmont District team and All-Region IV team players.

The Lady Cougars stormed through Piedmont District regular season competition, going 10-0. The ladies hosted the first round game of the Region IV tourney against Gate City. The Lady Cougars produced some runs, played solid defense, and let Erin Wilson do the rest in a 3-1 win over the Lady Blue Devils. Next up for the Lady Cougars was Tazwell. In a strong offensive performance, the Lady Cougars triumphed 9-5, clinching a state playoff berth.

The Cougars lost a tough game to a very strong William Byrd team in the quarterfinals of the state playoffs. The Lady Cougars finished 16-3 overall. Infielder Amy Havens summarized with, "We have a great program and hope to continue it in the future."

Home Run! Junior Scott Errichetti does his best Mark McGwire impression as he trots home after belting a home run.

"We had a very good year this past season. Finishing it with a win in front of the home crowd in the Piedmont District Championship over Bassett was great," stated Varsity Baseball Coach David Jones about the Cougars.

The Varsity Cougars enjoyed a great year. One reason that the Cougars had such a good year was the great team chemistry that the Cougars exhibited. On this subject, Coach Jones said, "We really played well as a team. The guys were a team on and off the field. Each team member knew their role on the field. These factors enabled us to meet our potential and our goals that we set."

The primary goal that the Cougars set for themselves was to qualify for the Region IV Tournament at the end of the season. To do this, they realized that they had to win the Piedmont District Tournament. The action was very dramatic. The week started with an opening win over Laurel Park 9-3. The Cougars next opponent was regular season champ Fieldale-Collinsville. With some unfortunate circumstances and injuries, the Cougars were not manned with a full squad. Despite this, sophomore Brett Helms pitched a solid game and the Cougar offense supplied the rest in a 8-5 win. This allowed them advance to face Bassett for the championship.

Junior Justin Lancaster pitched a great game and the Cougar lineup pounded Bassett pitchers for a 10-1 victory. The Cougars then advanced to the Regional Tournament where they faced a tough Richlands team and lost a close game.

Coach Jones summarized by saying,"Beating F-C and Bassett in the PD tourney was a great feeling. I'm glad that we met our goals and had a very successful season. I'm extremely proud of them."

What did you do over the summer? The Student Council Association (SCA) took time out of vacation to send two members to the Virginia SCA camp at Bridgewater College, near Harrisonburg. President Terrence Nowlin and historian Ashly Johnson took part in many events available to campers. There were leadership seminars and idea-exchanging workshops where schools were able to obtain new information to better student life. Terrence Nowlin explained, "VSCA camp was a great experience. I feel like our attendance not only helped our school, but inspired in other schools a new viewpoint for the next year."

Without a president or historian, secretary Libby Belcher, treasurer Ben Hutchens, vice president Matthew Shelor and reporter Alex Reynolds kept things running smoothly at home. Their jobs varied from working odd jobs during a study hall to keeping treasury records.

One of the most important jobs in the SCA was the position of Inter-Club Council president, held by SCA vice president Matthew Shelor. The ICC consisted of all club presidents. The function of this council was to be an open forum for ideas and problem solving within the clubs.

The SCA and ICC proved to be the backbone of the school, organizing dances, banquets, club activities, and behind the scenes work that kept the school running. All being elected positions, the student body knew who were the "big dogs."

Knowledge and Skills Combined

Whether it was Algebra, Geometry, or even Calculus, we've all experienced a math class in high school. Math is a very unique subject that has an impact on many young lives. In between problems, you either waited for a test, took a test, or took notes. This type of work tended to pressure and stress some students such as Elise Hunsicker who said "Math is stupid, boring, and utterly confusing."

While this kind of work environment was dreaded by some, it was anticipated by many others such as Emily King who commented, "Mrs. Akers' math class was very enjoyable." Those with an attitude of such toward the subject often took it a step further and joined extracurricular activities that challenged their mathematical abilities. One such was the PCHS Math Team.

With its grueling practices and stressful competitions the Math Team was always working to become a better and stronger team as a whole. Not only was the team rewarding educationally, but it was fun as well. Eleventh grader, Beverly Beasley commented, "Math Team was really great and more people should get involved because it's extremely fun."

How much longer? Impatient Pre-Algebra students wonder, "Just how much longer until the bell?" Time seemed somewhat slow for many math students.

Abuzz About English

Literature in English and Competition

The English hall was abuzz with literature as students pondered such classics as Wuthering Heights, Animal Farm, and To Kill A Mockingbird. The literature academic team also proved to be a wonderful supplement to the study of the classics.

In the pursuit of higher education, many English students chose to take advanced, honors, and advanced placement classes. These classes focused on influential literature of the United States, Britain, and abroad. One positive aspect of these classes was the size. "Having a small class makes the atmosphere more comfortable. It's easier to learn and express ideas," explained Libby Belcher, an advanced placement English student.

Those students who chose to exert themselves to go the extra mile found themselves competing on the literature academic team. Ben Hutchens commented, "With this being my first year, I have learned extensively about authors, novels, and literature as a whole."

The literature team made a ritual of meeting on Thursday afternoons after school to take part in heated discussions on assigned readings. Assigned readings included short stories, poetry, speeches, and novels that appeared on the VHSL reading list. After reading these various works, team members were verbally quizzed and discussion of the material took place.

The real payoff for this team's love of literature came on the nights that academic competitions took place. Team competitors found themselves on the stage of an auditorium of any school in our district. Buzzer in hand, competitors were ready to be victorious.

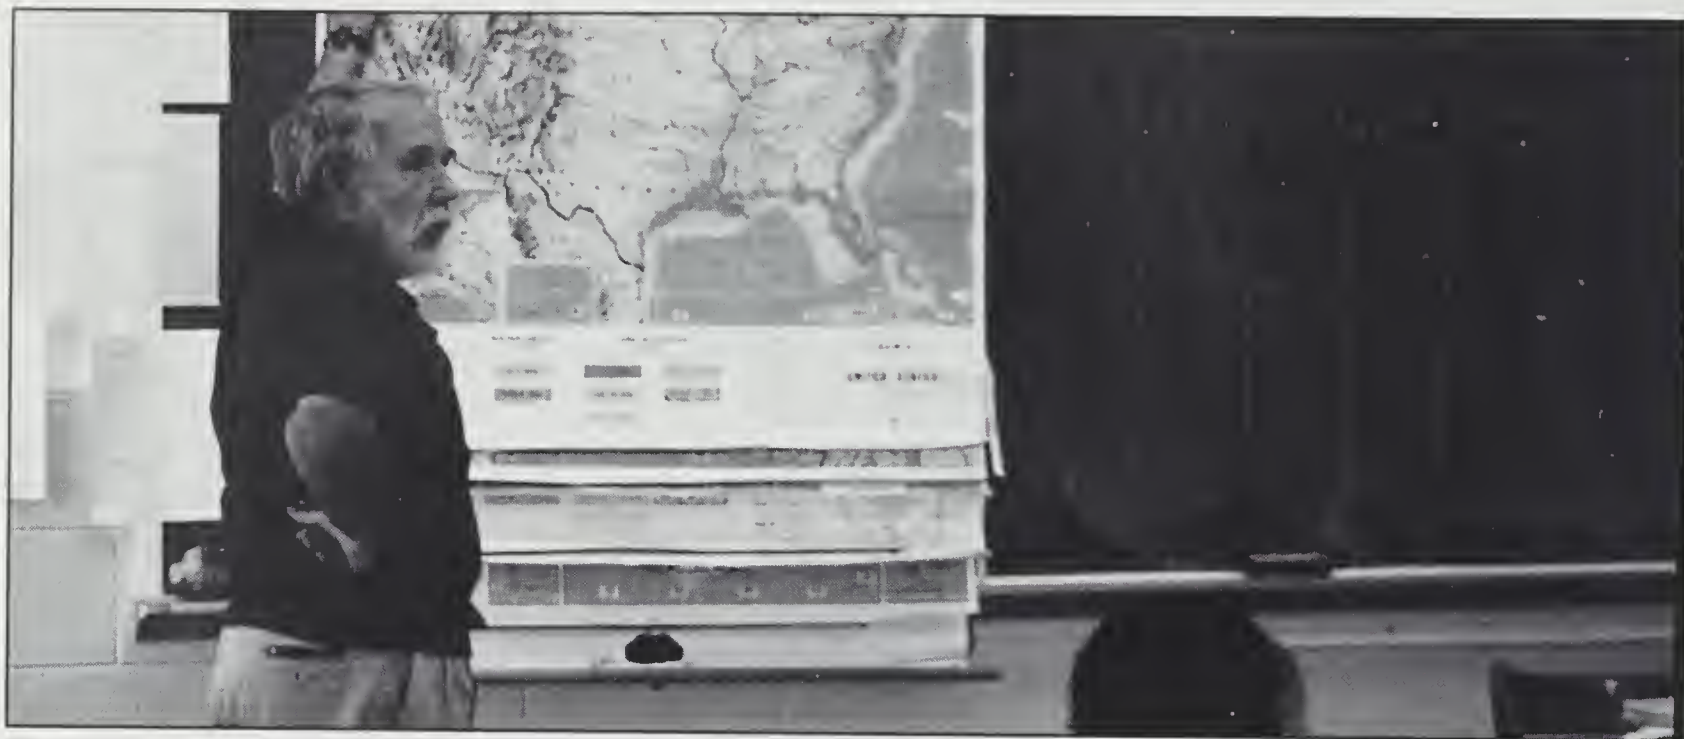

English and the study of fine literature was not taken lightly by our dedicated students. Classic works were taken seriously and enjoyed, rather than dreaded as just another assignment. The English hall certainly buzzed with great things.

Studying Events of the Past, Present, and Future

Mr. Halsey uses his map to his advantage while teaching students. Geography was an important part in all of history.

Kelly Goins listens as his teacher enlightens his class on Supreme Court cases. Court cases are important not only now, but were in the past as well.

"The Social Studies Team had a great year. This being my first year, I had lots of fun. Mr. Smith is a great coach."

-Andrew Hunsicker

"Mr. Stanley's sociology class was very interesting. I learned a lot, and I thought about subject matter I never had before."

-J.J. Stana

"World History was very fun. I never knew a social studies class could be so fun. Mr. Stanley is a great teacher."

-Tamara Overby

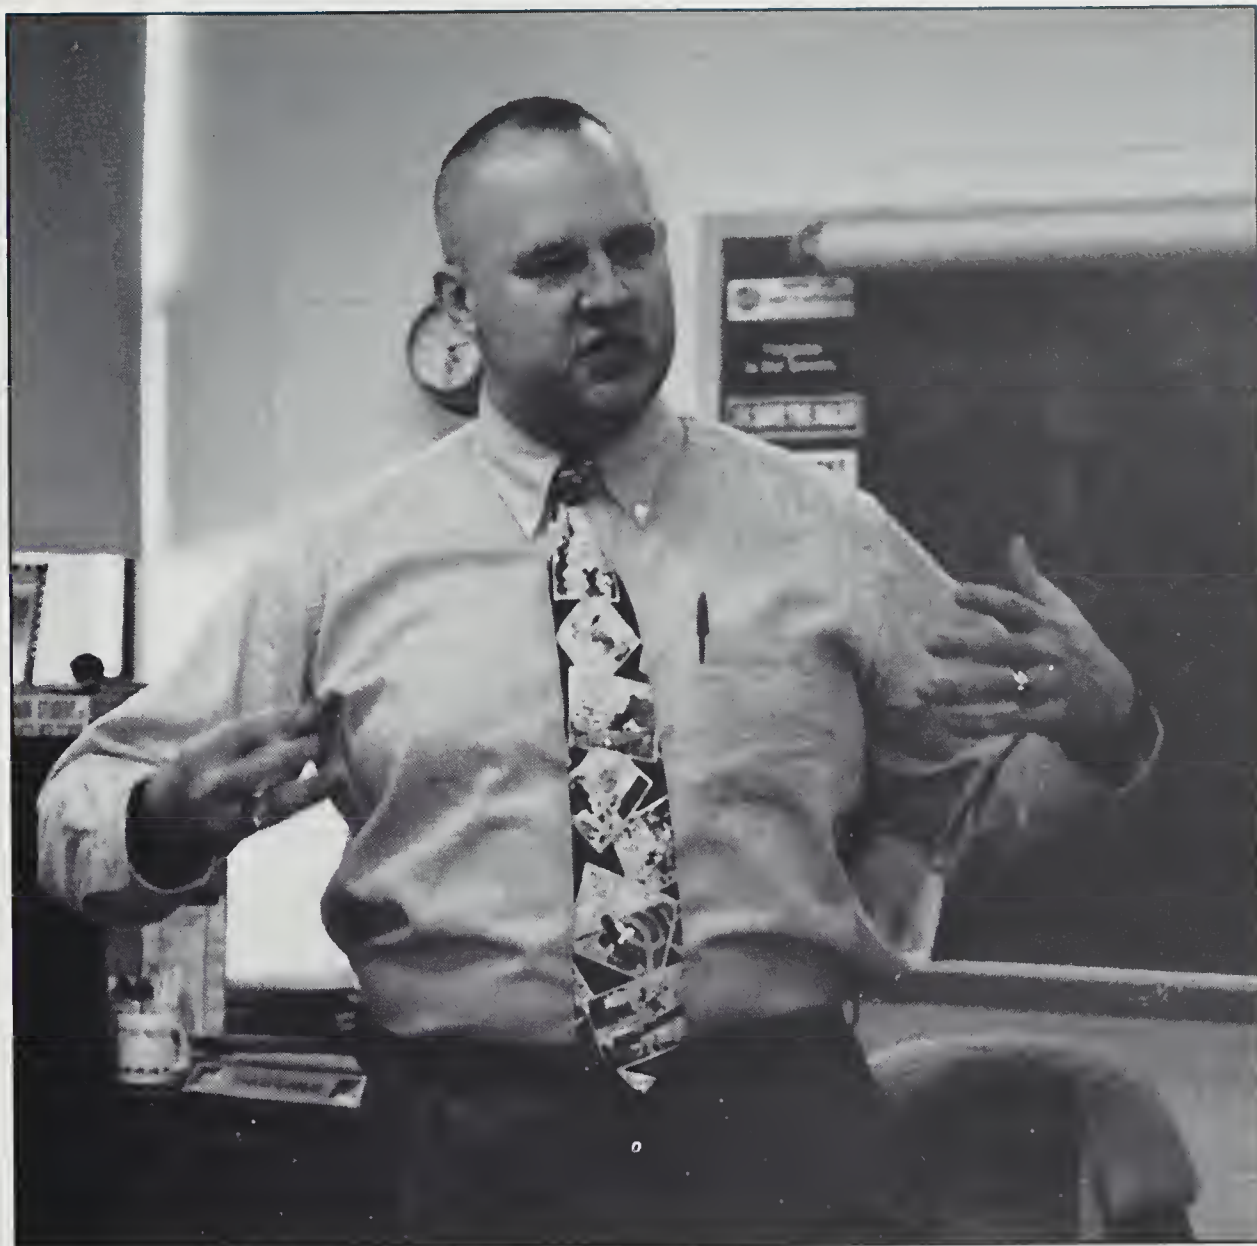

"I learned a lot on the Social Studies team, and the knowledge I acquired will be useful to me in my later lifetime. We had an experienced team, and I hope we do even better next year."

-Jon Rea

"Social Studies is a great subject that allows people to learn more about the world around them. It is very essential to a well-rounded education. Perhaps even more notice should be given to the subject."

-Beverly Beasley

Mr. Dunlap explains another chapter in history to his students. Students found his lectures very interesting.

Learning from past mistakes is the only way to avoid making the same mistakes in the future. No one was better aware of this fact than the students who took classes such as World History, Sociology, U.S. History, or any of the many others offered at P.C.H.S. The future has a lot to do with the actions of the past. Junior, Beverly Beasley commented, "Social Studies is a great subject that allows people to learn more about the world around them. It is very essential to a well-rounded education. Perhaps even more notice should be given to the subject." No one agreed with her more than Sophomore, Zane Childress who said, "People who learn from past mistakes, can often avoid making future ones of the same kind. Education is a way to become aware of your past mistakes, as well as those of the rest of the world, and correct them."

All great leaders started their education by learning about those who were great before them. They developed mentors and followed in their footsteps, or even created their own. Great leaders often begin as a student, but make their accomplishments later.

World Geography students are all ears during class. Geography proved to be a fun, as well as interesting subject to most.

Scientific Evidence. Kelly Rakes and Travis Scales study their notes for Science Team. Studying helped academic teams succeed.

Strylin'. Donning a pair of thick laboratory glasses, Jennifer McKinney stirs up something interesting. Safety always came first, just in case "something interesting" blew up.

Our Earthy Sciences

What's that funky smell? Usually it's the cafeteria food, but on the other side of the school, the big stink was about science. Science Classes ranged from all levels and there was even a science academic team.

Science Classes experienced some of the most entertaining periods. In Human Anatomy, dissection of pigs was an annual event. In Biology, frogs and worms were dissected. So what wasn't dissected? Mice. Nope, they were just eaten whole by Mr. Gerald Culler's python, Medusa.

Earth Science wasn't quite so slimy. Students gathered weather information daily to form a chart. Mr. Arnie Kloock demonstrated exactly how a styrofoam cup could become a drink coaster with just a little finger-nail polish remover, or scientifically, acetone.

The Chemistry lab housed hundreds of deadly chemicals that were enjoyed in experiments. True rang the words of science teachers for all times, "Don't taste anything, even if it does smell good." Some experiments in chemistry did smell good. One in particular imitated the smell of spearmint or banana.

These courses prepared students for the future. Kristin Hylton, Earth Science and Physics student commented, "I believe that science is an essential part of any high-schooler's schedule."

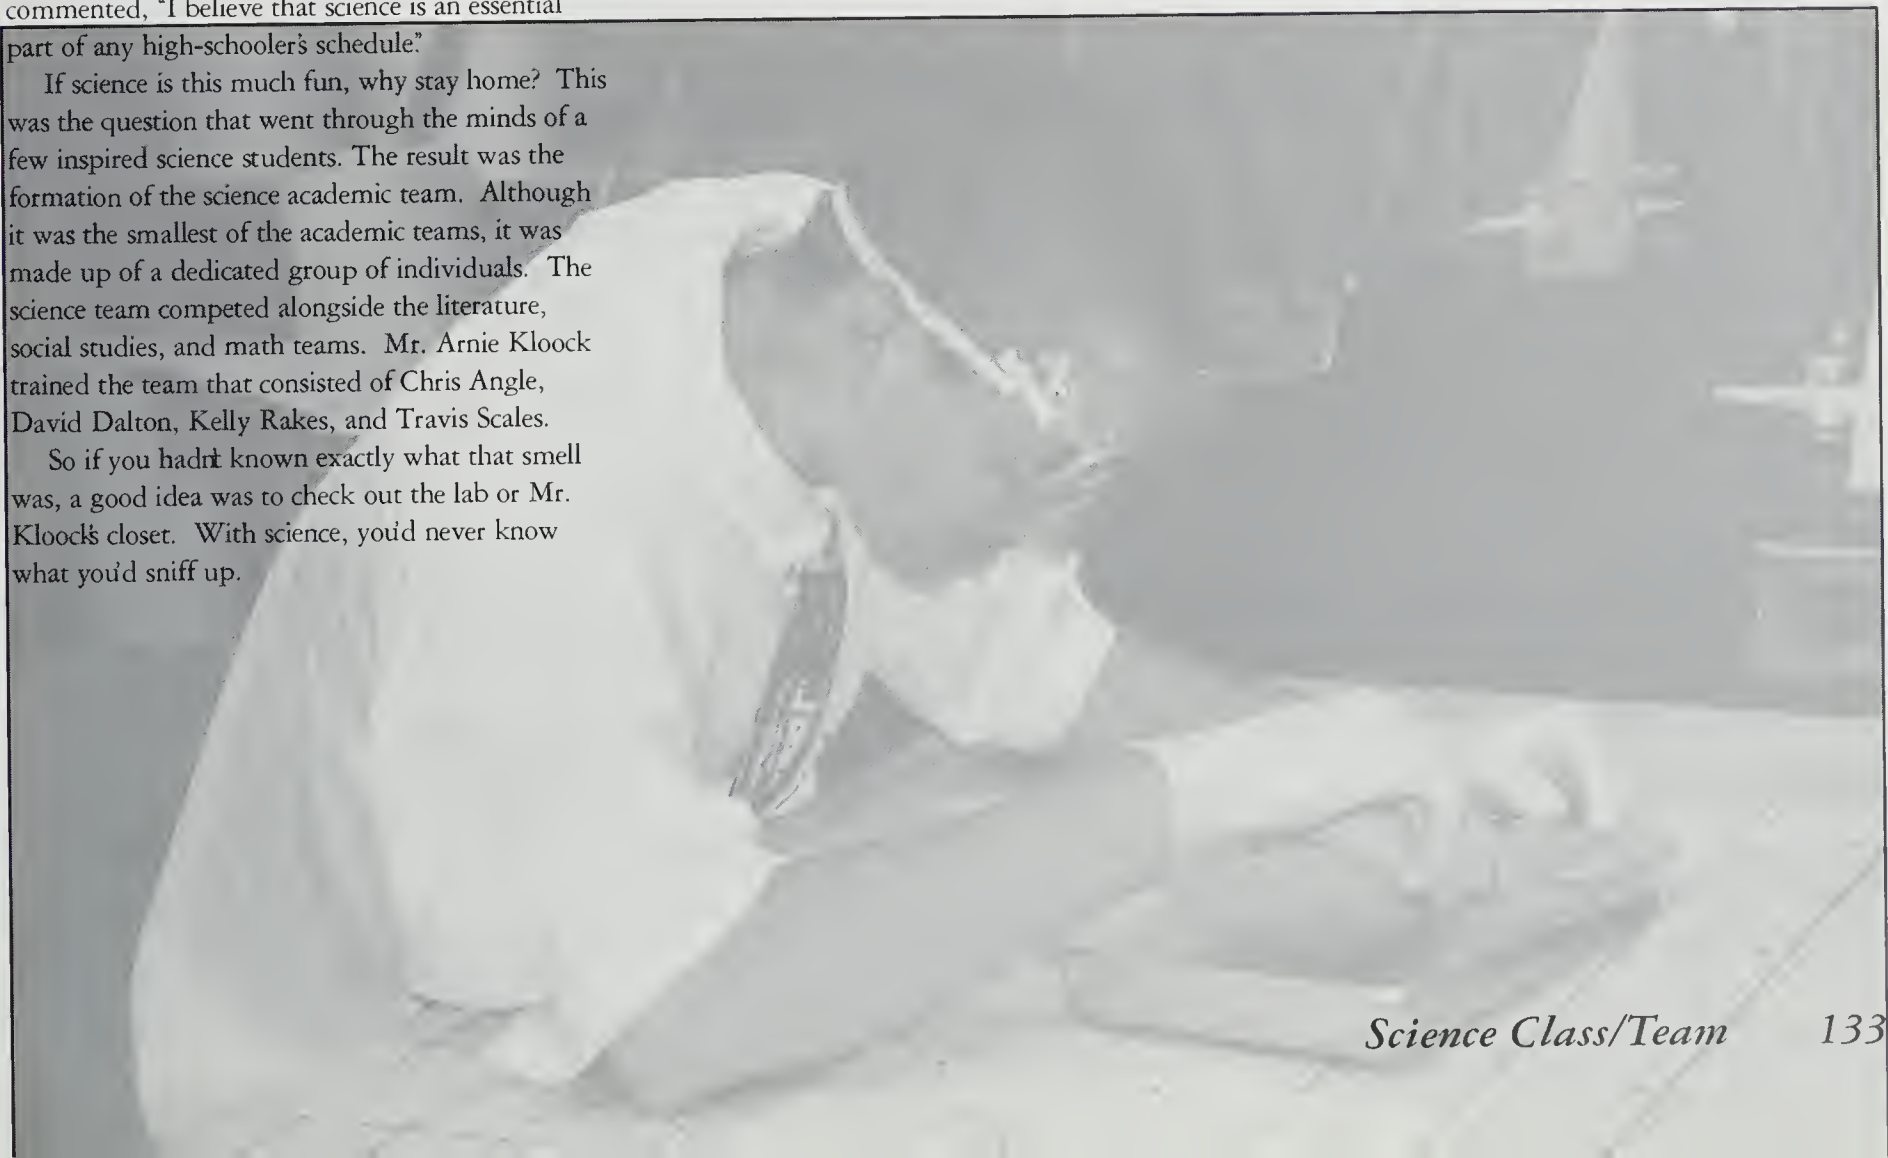

If science is this much fun, why stay home? This was the question that went through the minds of a few inspired science students. The result was the formation of the science academic team. Although it was the smallest of the academic teams, it was made up of a dedicated group of individuals. The science team competed alongside the literature, social studies, and math teams. Mr. Arnie Kloock trained the team that consisted of Chris Angle, David Dalton, Kelly Rakes, and Travis Scales.

So if you hadn't known exactly what that smell was, a good idea was to check out the lab or Mr. Kloock's closet. With science, you'd never know what you'd sniff up.

Music In the Making

Hard Work and Determination Pay Off

The band's hard work and determination really payed off when it came time to play at events such as this.

"Band was a lot of fun this year. It required a lot of hard work, but in the end it was well worth it."

-Michelle Lambert

"Band never ceases to be challenging, yet exciting at the same time. I'm never bored and I don't know what's to happen next."

-Jon Rea

"I've enjoyed being in band a lot. The skills I've acquired are immeasurable; and I've also made a lot of friends."

-Beth Morris

"Band is a really fun experience. I love to march."

-Ashley Simpson

"Playing music in the band allows me to express myself in ways I'm not able to through words. It's my way of being artistic."

-Chris Halsey

"Band has never ceased to amaze me. I never know what to expect. It's very unpredictable."

-Dori Martin

"Music is an art and should be treated as such. Programs such as band allow students to express themselves in a different way."

-Katt Clement

"Band is a great class, in that music is a very important part of our society."

-Jarret Clement

The band gives a stunning performance of "Jailhouse Rock."

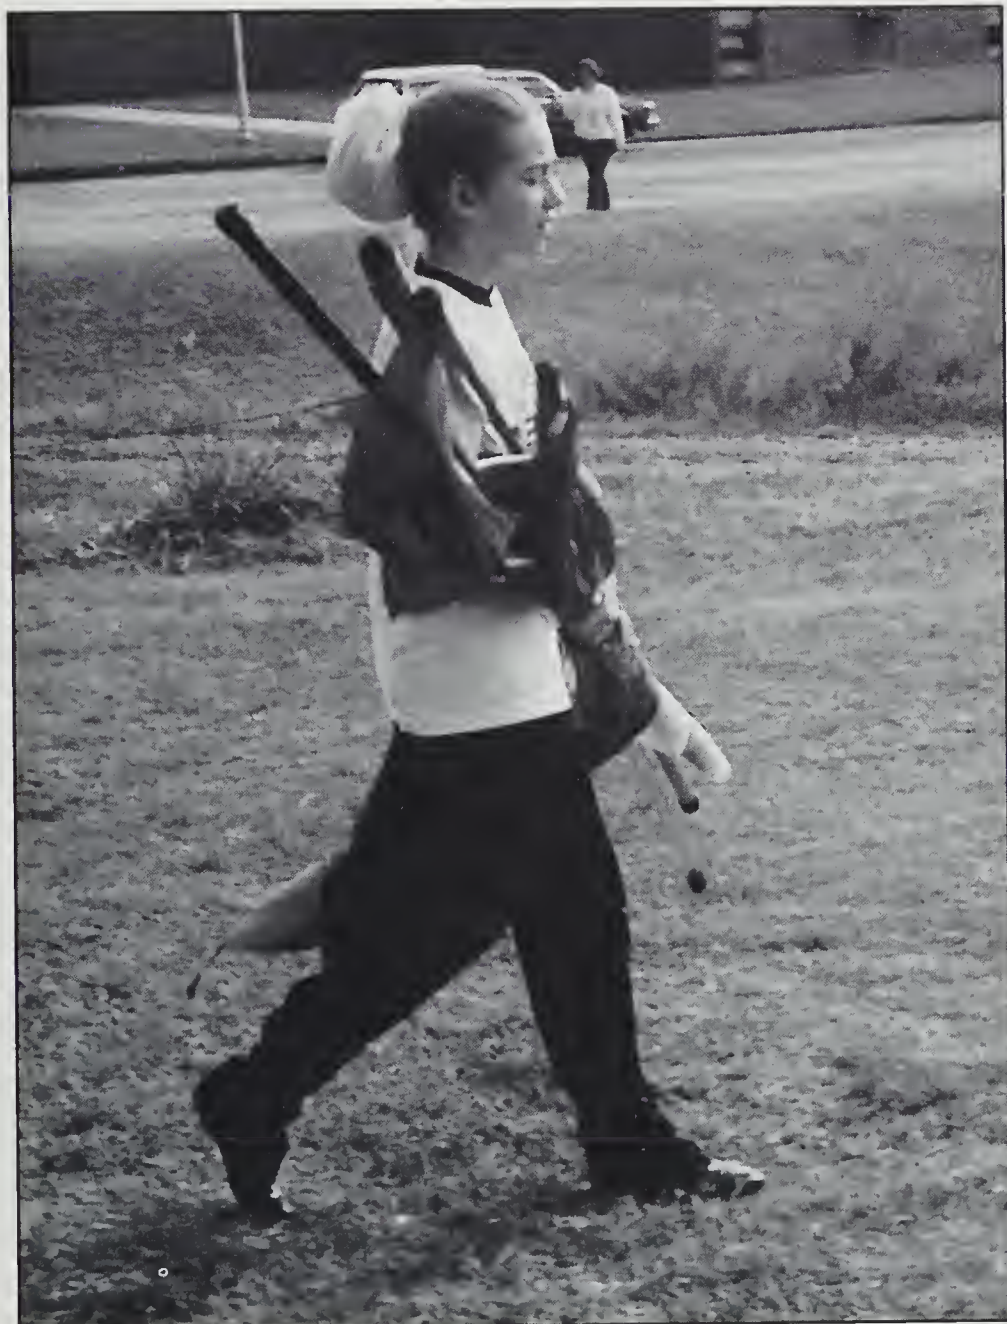

Mr. Lewis shows the band, "how it's done." Mr. Lewis proved to be a valuable teacher to all the band students.

Music today is given less than the recognition to which it is entitled. Classes such as band set out to change that. The class allowed students to express themselves musically, and better yet; learn. The band always kept busy; whether it was by a competition or just practicing day after day.

The band's hard work always paid off in the end. Their competitions and performances always kept the audience on the edge of their seats. The audience always looked forward to their half-time football performances, and eagerly awaited their competitions.

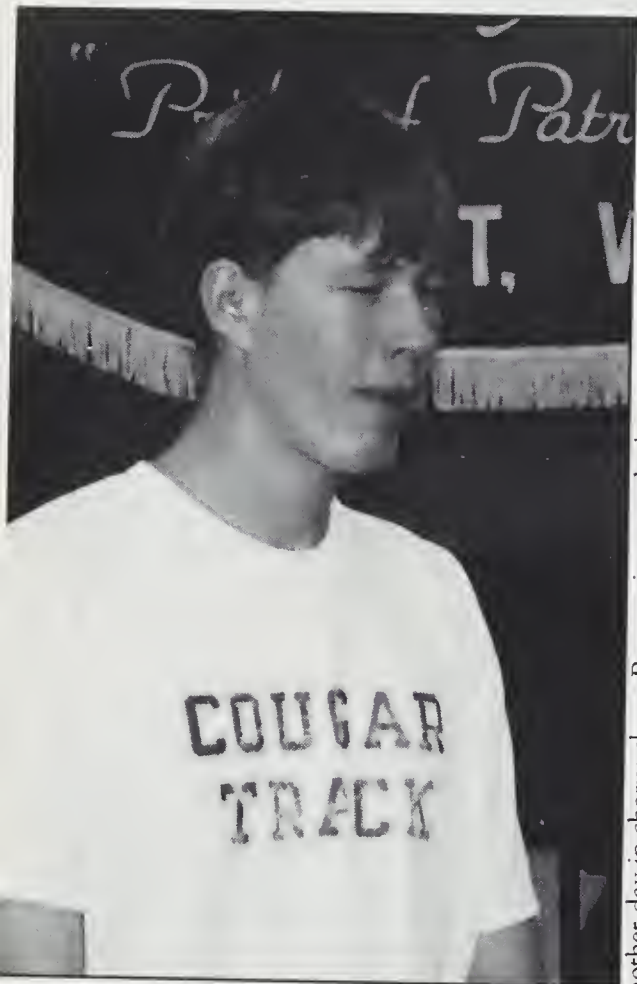

Mr. Lewis instructs the students on correct playing. His guidance was greatly appreciated.

Practice always made perfect when it came to the band's music. Learning from mistakes is an important part of all music.

What a Sound!

Chorus Keeps the Beat

Tuning Up. Brian Handy warms up his voice for another day in chorus class. Preparation was the key to great singing

Yeah, they got the beat. Chorus was always a fine point in the fine arts. But how did they get that way? Preparation.

As usual, when in music, practice makes perfect. Singing their hearts out, the chorus students took long hours of practice time just to get it right. But hey, they had to get prepared for practice, too. That's right. They hummed. They warmed their voices up. They sang scales and simple songs. Then, it was on to the "big stuff."

They practiced through the whole hour and a half through the class period. Some were even so intuitive that they practiced at home.

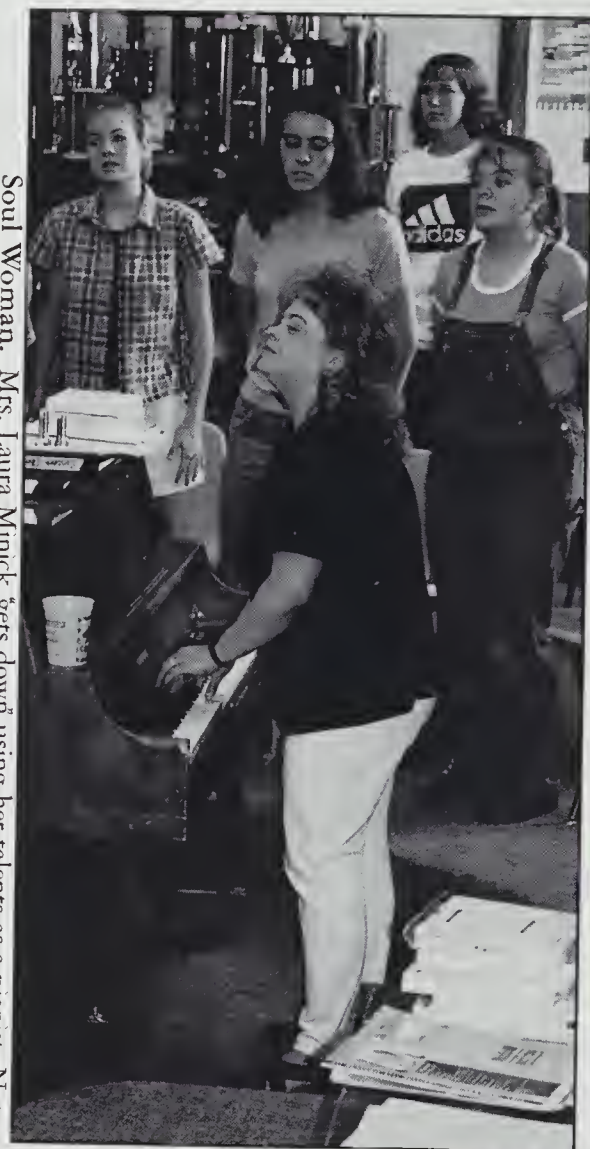

But what exactly did all of this practicing accomplish? First of all, self-betterment. Who cared about that when they could hear the chorus sing?

It was the great reward chorus singers got when they sang in front of a crowd. Chorus always surprised and thrilled the audience with a new piece.

They sang at the veterans day assembly with a patriotic salute to veterans and accompanied the band with any other endeavors. The yearly fundraiser for chorus was their ever-popular "Desserts and Carols." This was a Christmastime event that allowed the general public to sit down and enjoy the wonderful sounds of the chorus. This was their "window-display" of the year.

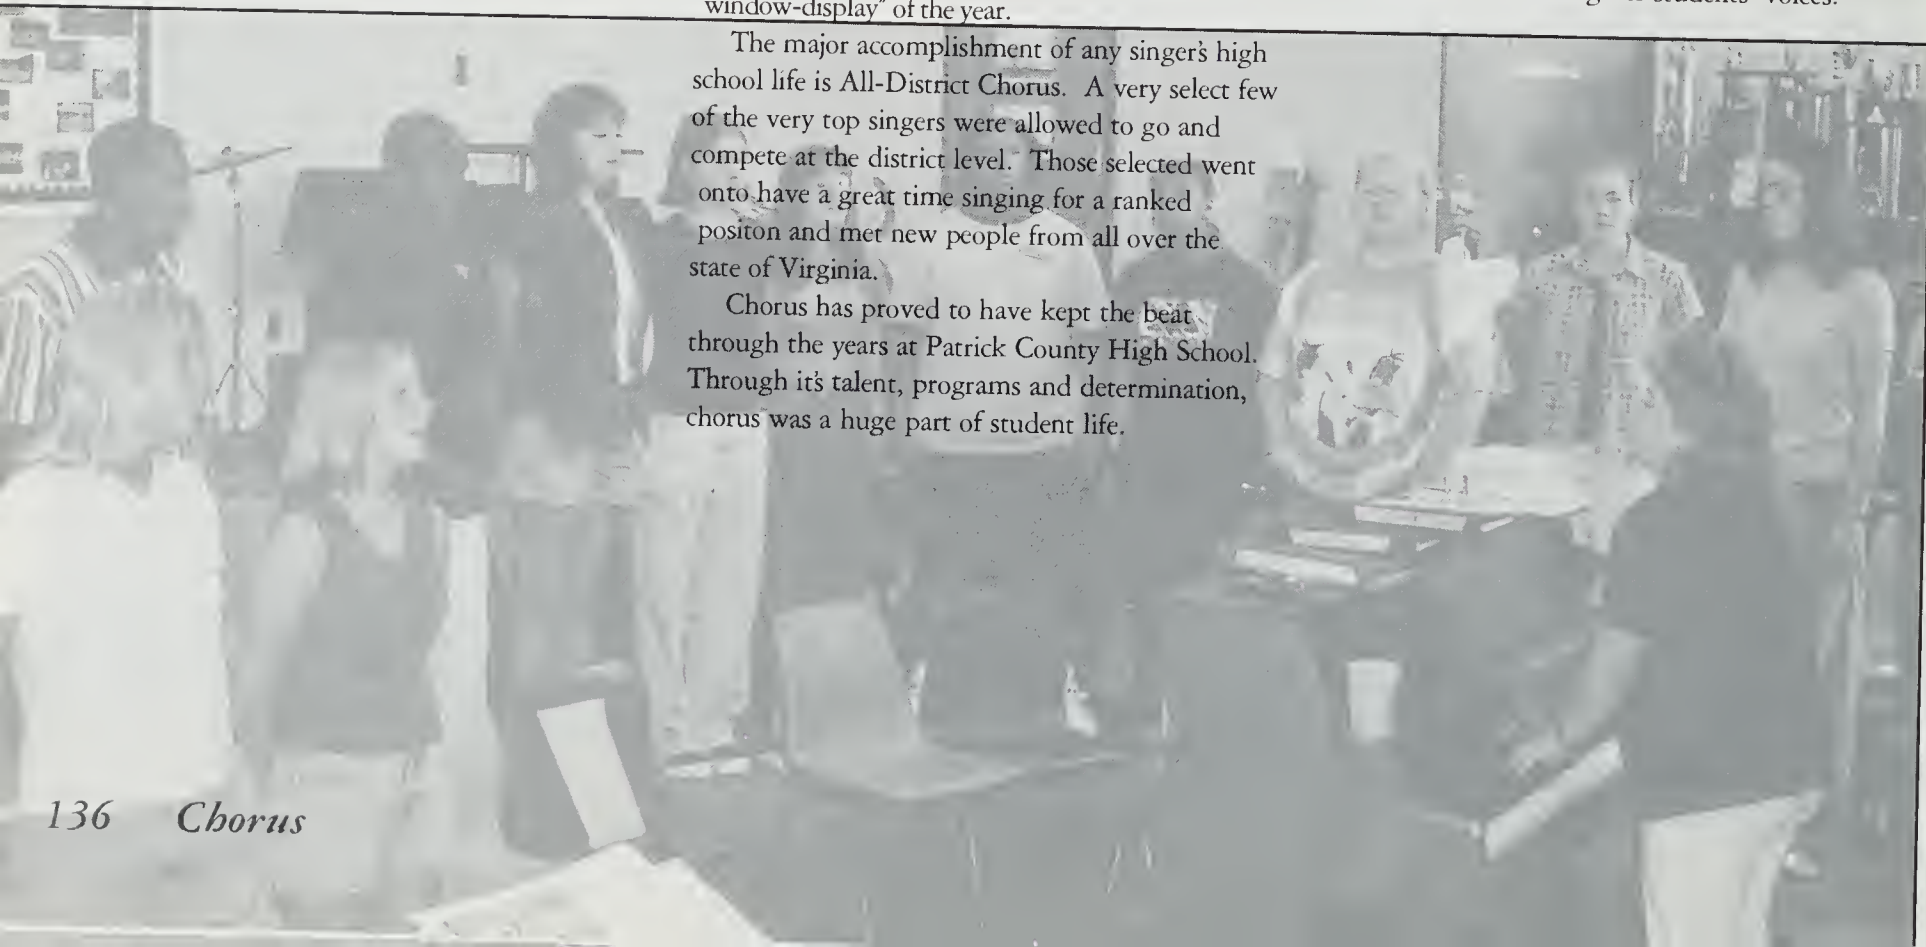

The major accomplishment of any singer's high school life is All-District Chorus. A very select few of the very top singers were allowed to go and compete at the district level. Those selected went onto have a great time singing for a ranked position and met new people from all over the state of Virginia.

Chorus has proved to have kept the beat through the years at Patrick County High School. Through its talent, programs and determination, chorus was a huge part of student life.

Breaking A Leg

Bearing It All. Forensics and Drama Club members show their enthusiasm by participating.

Whether it was acting or public speaking, it made no difference because programs for both were offered this year. These programs allowed PCHS students to get a feel for what public performance is really like. Students were very glad to finally be able to use their strong speaking voices for more than giving an oral in foreign language classes.

Students became even more excited when informed that a drama class would be offered at PCHS starting next year. One of these such students, Megan Daumen, commented, "It's great that public speaking and acting is finally getting part of their much deserved recognition. Slowly, but surely, it shall obtain all."

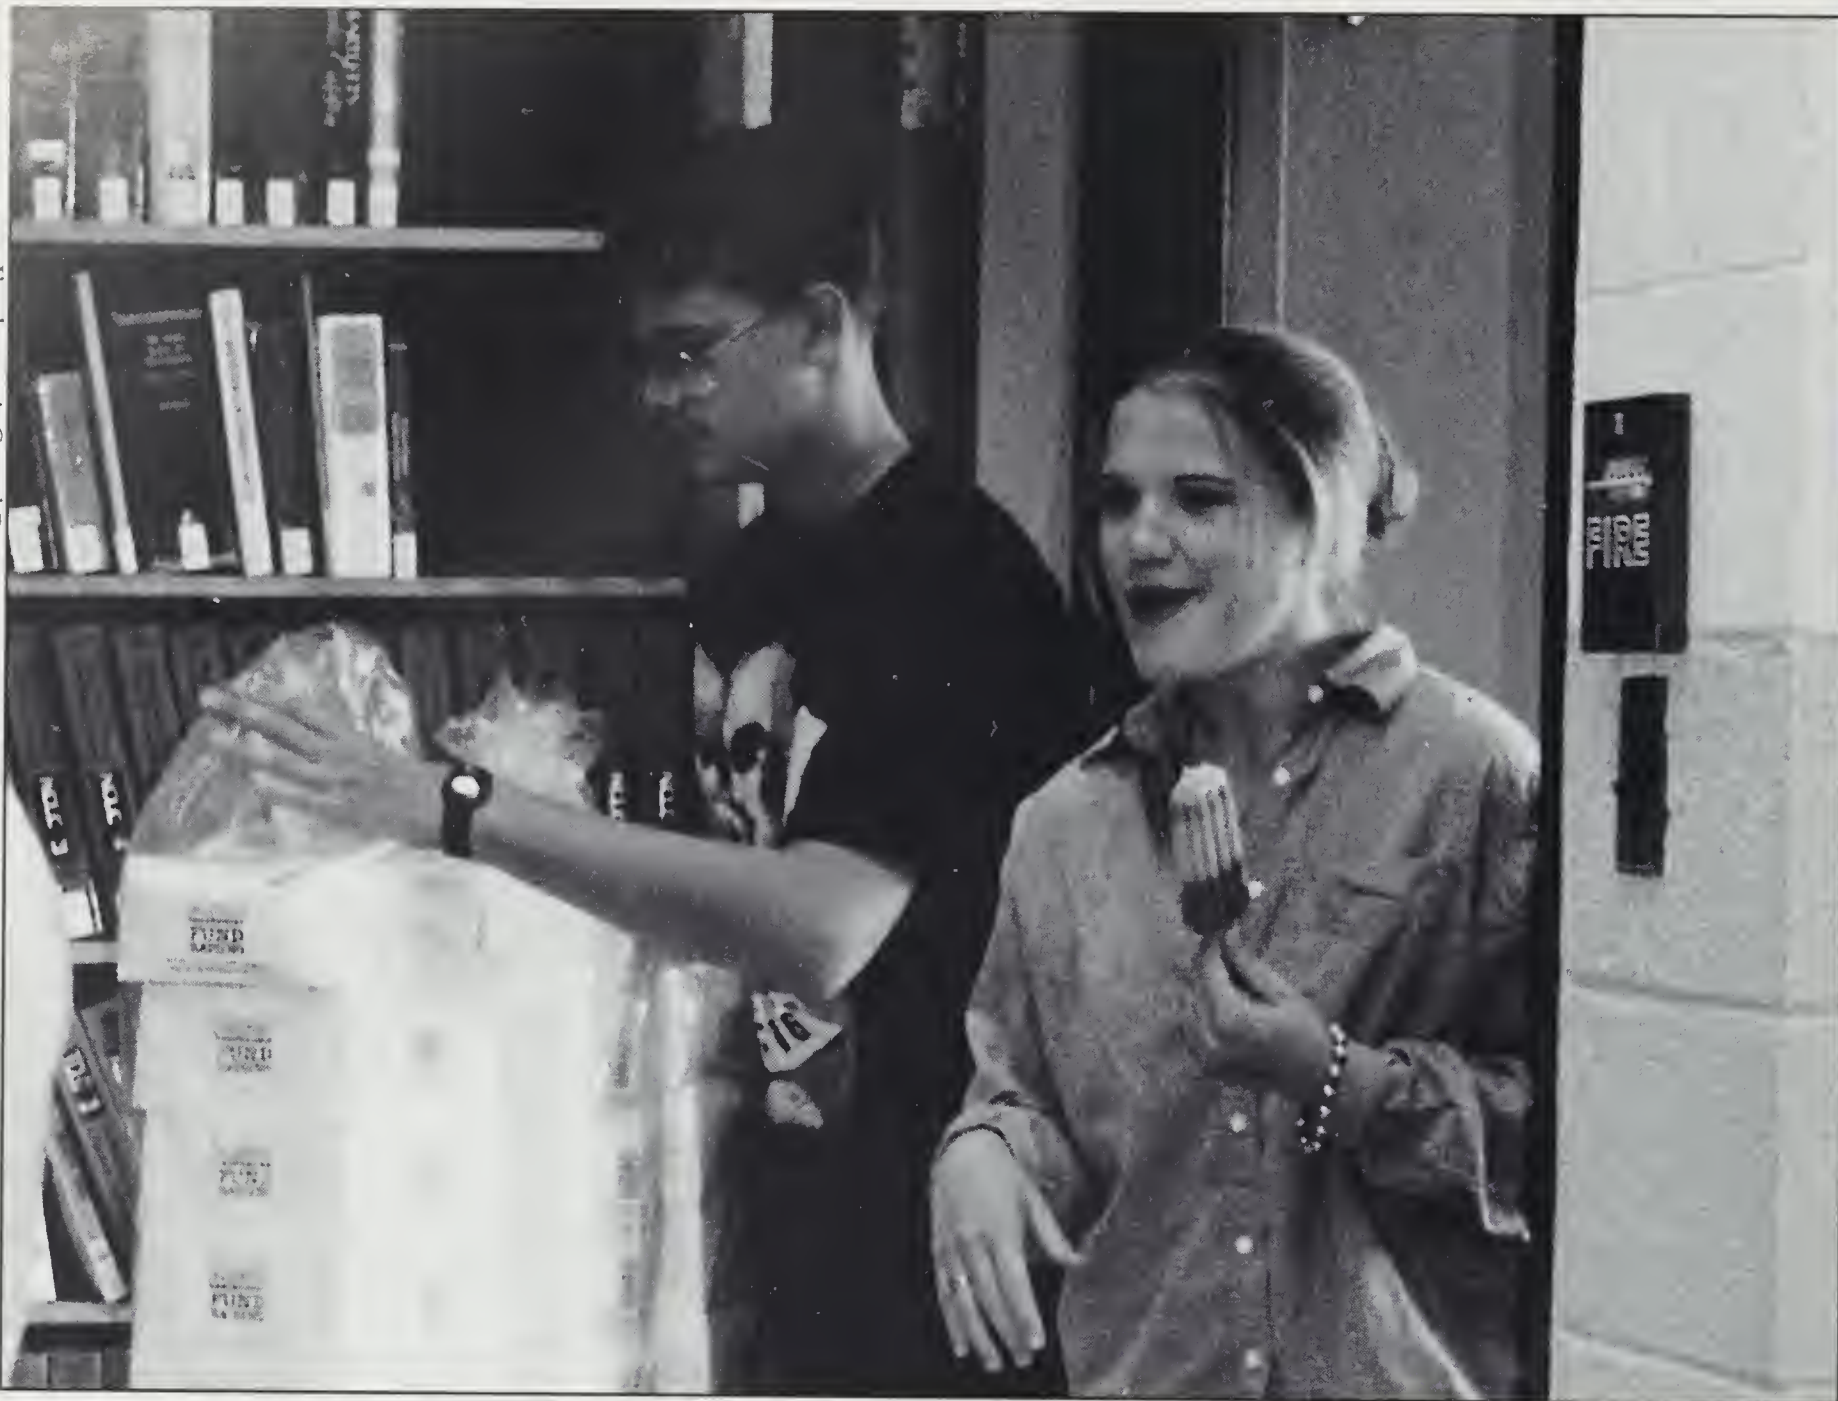

The addition of classes such as a Drama class could influence and perhaps boost PCHS' student's opinions on many of the more ignored arts such as acting, poetry, comedy, and much more.

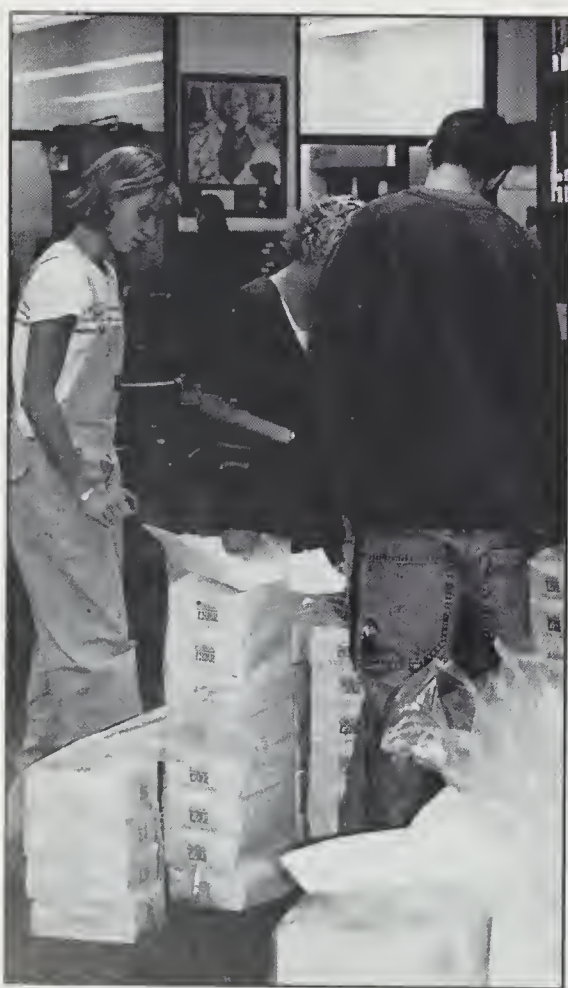

Workin' Hard. Students work to prepare pieces for competition. Forensics really stood out with regional and state competitors at Patrick County.

Brains Behind Beta

Providing Service to the Community

The Junior and Senior Beta Clubs were two prominent organizations that proved themselves to consist of some of the most elite students, requiring no less than a 3.5 GPA. The club proved to be beneficial to students through activities and advantages available to them.

Junior Beta, headed by Mrs. Debbie Blackwell had a successful year. The highlight of events was their field trip to historic Williamsburg. The State Junior Beta Convention was held there in early March. Participants enjoyed talent shows and craft displays. Junior Beta officers were Shannon Largen, Chris Nowlin, and Nicole Marot.

Senior Beta placed its mark in the year with many events. The ever-popular Krispy-Kreme doughnut sales proved to be a major fundraising idea. A new idea was brought about with the announcement of the compilation of a history of Patrick County. Many Beta members visited Blue Ridge Nursing Home and interviewed the elderly to get a taste of the past. They then wrote a brief summary of the life of each person and summary of the life each person and submitted it for publication.

As usual, the Beta members held a canned food drive and successfully collected food for Social Services and a local church. The strong point of the year was State and National Convention. Both dedicated enforced the Beta belief that the club is dedicated to "scholarship, leadership, character, and service."

"I am really looking forward to attending both State and National Beta Convention!"

Foreign Languages In A Not So American Way

Foreign language, history, and customs were combined in classes and clubs offered at PCHS. Whether it was learning to say a foreign phrase or discovering what Mardi Gras was all about, students had a chance to experience foreign customs for themselves. Classes of French and Spanish, as well as clubs of French, Spanish, and German allowed students to discover their talents in a not-so "American way."

Junior, Brad Morris, commented, "French class, as well as club has had an immense impact on me; not just mentally, but socially as well. I've learned a lot and made many friends in the process." Many students share Brad's opinion on foreign languages, such as junior Dori Martin who said, "Being in a foreign language class has been extremely interesting. The knowledge that can be acquired in such a class is unbelievable. The teaching methods have been very effective." The teachers, as well as the methods with which they taught proved to be very popular.

And All That Art...

Art Influence on the Community

Only a very small part of our school was dedicated fully to the study of art. In this room, art classes learned important skills, and the art club met, stressing art's value in society.

A typical period in an art class began with a daily subject drawing. A topic was chosen each week and students were given a chance to create drawings from different angles, each day of the week. Afterward came instruction. Mrs. Shelor demonstrated different techniques of art and students were given a chance to perform themselves.

Those students that excelled in art class were likely to be found on club day in the same room, for art club. Mrs. Shelor explained, "The main purpose of art club is to expose students to different art forms and resources within the community." A trip was made in November to the Reynolda House Museum of Art. Club members had the experience of forming sculptures from junk materials. Not only did they learn from the community, art club members helped the community by making hand-puppets for children of the Headstart Program. Meetings also consisted of craft activities and guest speakers that demonstrated their art, such as origami.

The arts at our school were greatly enriched through art class and art club. Many techniques were learned and the community was significantly improved with the services of the club.

Great things emerging in the paint. Heather Merriman works diligently on a long-term painting project. Large projects kept students enthusiastic.

" Art club is a great opportunity for students not having time to express their creative ideas in only one semester."

Get A Move On

Two very influential clubs of the 1999 year, were the Health Careers and Varsity Clubs. They showed their responsibility with two very important activities, Special Olympics and the Bloodmobile.

The Varsity Club organized the Special Olympics. It was one of the most important, and exciting events of the year. Special Olympics gives the Varsity Club members a chance to participate in a community service.

The Varsity Club is headed by President: Carter Deekens, Vice President: Terry Plasters, Secretary: Libby Belcher.

Health Career club has several learning experiences. Students learned about all the different health related careers you could employee in. The clubs activities included the Bloodmobile and bakesales. Club officers were Suzie Rusmiesal: President, Crystal Chappel: Vice President, Melissa Vaught: Secretary, and Brooke Anderson: Historian.

PREPARING FOR THE BIG WORLD

DECA, Agriculture, and Auto Mechanics are three organizations that involved a lot of hardwork and determination. "The Association of Marketing defined DECA, helped build leadership and social skills, it also gave the students a better vocational understanding. The club had 40 members.

DECA students participated in fundraisers, such as selling candy in the spring and fall. Club officers were David Hubbard President, Micheal Hutchens Vice President, Melissa DeHart Secretary, and Josh Sutphin Treasurer. Auto Mechanics students put all their hardwork into rebuilding engines, changing tires, doing basic automotive shopwork, and basic care for vehicles this past year.

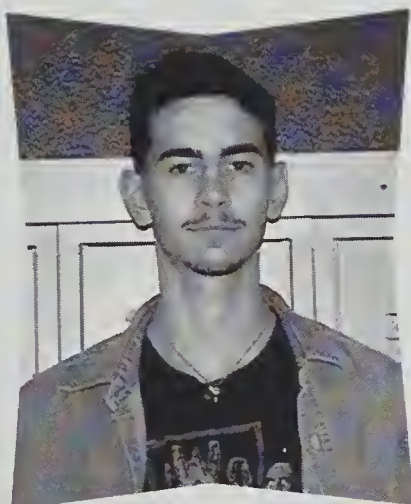

If every student participated and did well throughout the week, then that Friday, they got to have a carwash. Students in the Auto Mechanics showed all their intelligence and hardwork with these activities. Agricultural Students had several outdoor activities. Crop planting, raising, and learning about nature were some of the high points of the year.

OFF AND RUNNING IN THE REAL WORLD

The VICA Club had their hands full this past year, with activities such as Local, District, and State contests. They sold items like Life-Saver Lollipops and bake goods for fundraisers. The club also joined in community services like the "Adopt a Highway" program and the "Adopt a Family" program.

The 22 members of the club are led by President: Chad Angle, Vice President: Nick Pendleton, Secretary: Candice Puckett, Treasurer: Samantha Hall, Parliamentarian: Dawn Woodall, and Reporter/Historian: Melissa Whorley.

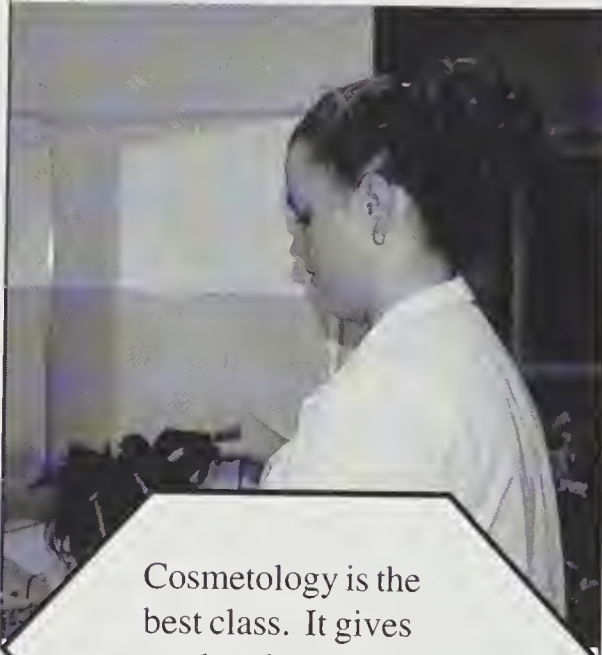

Mrs. Helen Boyd is the head advisor of the club along with Mr. Dale Steele, Mr. Phillip Steagall, and Mr. Bruce Dollarhite. Mrs. Boyd commented, "The VICA club is very important because it encourages students to develop a strong work ethic. It also teaches students to gain respect for their work regardless of the task. This club really prepares students to enter the community and join the work force."

The VICA club contributes a great deal not only to the school, but to our community as well.

With 43 members, this years FHA club has grown enormously. Along with this growth came new activities and more fun. Some of the activities included moonlthly quest speakers, field trips to the College of Human Resources at Virginia Tech, trip to the Ronald McDonald House for Children, and Carowinds.

The club also had fun serving others. "We sent Brenner's Hospital some Halloween Candy and a video. We adopted them for our project," says club president B.J. Boyd. The club held a fund raiser in September. They raised money to buy a large cement cougar mascot and to support the visitation of a nationally renowned guest speaker. FHA Club Officers are as follows : President Billie Joe Boyd, Vice President Nicole Stanley, Secretary Kristy Hawks, Historian Nicki Montgomery, Game Leader Ashley Harris.

Cosmetology is a experience based class. Cosmetology students learned the basics of beauty care. Stuentns and staff were allowed to be cared for by the Cosmetology Students. Hair cuts, perms, and manicures were given. Cosmetology instructor Mrs. Boyd says, "I love teaching Cosmetology. The kids are great and it gives them an excellent start on a self supported life." These exceptional students learn new techniques and advances in beauty care every day, and they enjoy what they do.

Be Careful. Teen Living student Wes Jones Holds on tight to his baby. These computerized babies were a new edition to the Home Economics Classes this year. It taught many the responsibilities and jobs of being a parent.

LEARNING THE BUSINESS WORLD UPSIDE DOWN

The FBLA, Future Business Leaders of America, have a club on the national level which was based on a five point program : business knowledge and skills, leadership and promotion, social, financial, and school and community service.

As well as preparing students for a business career, FBLA provides many school and community service projects, specifically Thanksgiving, Christmas, and Easter. They also sponsored FBLA week, and socials and Appreciation Days for school personnel.

Club members also enjoyed going to Radford Regional Conferences. They participated in leadership conferences on the Regional, State, and National level. In the spring FBLA members enjoy taking part in competition. They did well. The club sponsored a fund raiser in October to raise funds for these activities. "It's fun and gives me a chance to meet people from around the region. It also furthers my business skills," quotes member Amanda Walker.

Far better than the fund raisers and conferences is the sense of business this club places in the students. Sponsor Paula Reynolds says, "We try to install in our members a work and business ethic." The club has a pledge, creed, and a code of ethics too follow. Club Officers are as follows : President Sandra Via, Vice President Amanda Walker, Secretary Jessica Terry, Treasurer Marcia Benz.

Seeing through the eyes of a business student. Business classes are tough. Looking at computer monitors for an hour and a half gets old.

Burning Up the Keys. Student Jon Guzman vigorously types his next assignment. Those who took business classes learned alot as well as having fun.

Confusing. "What is the problem," Jon Wood asks himself as he takes time to figure out his computer problems.

Students Take Charge. As Mrs. Reynolds goes to take fix computer problems, students decide to explore the computer realm themselves Party Time. Mrs. Feilds calls role while Party Club Officers stand ready to assist her.

Listen Up. FEA Club Presidnet Christi Williams Discusses one of the many new issues. Discussing issues among the club as a whole gains intrest and gets others imput.

PARTY, FCA, FEA

Three clubs looking to better students, their future, and their community.

Party Club promoted drug and alcohol free lifestyles among students and served the community through awareness promotions. They sponsored Red Ribbon Week, Prom Promise Week, Prom Promise Assembly, and a toy drive at Christmas for needy children in which they work with Social Services. The club members have fun year round. "The Prom Promise Assembly seems to be the high light of the year, especially last years wrestling match," says assistant sponsor Mary Fields. The school appreciates all the Party Club does to prevent drugs and alcohol from being abused.

FCA, Fellowship of Christian Athletes, sponsored the Morning Prayer Room, See You At The Pole, and National Prayer Day. They adopted grandparents from the nursing home and sponsored a family through the social services during the holidays. The FCA has grown by leaps and bounds.

"The Morning Prayer Room has become popular with many students and staff. We started with seven and now we have almost seventy regulars. I feel like its been a success. As a matter of fact rooms have been changed to accomidate the growing intrest," Says member J.D. Collins.

Join Me In Prayer. Many studnets found peace and togetherness in the morning prayer room. It was a great place to hang out and worship.

FEA, Future Educators of America encourage young people to enter the teaching field by allowing them to experience teaching first hand. FEA members enjoyed many trips and activities this year including : visits to colleges and a Day at an Elementary School. They also recognized teachers of the past by putting together a Retired Teachers Tea. They participated in parties for TMH classes. The members got a first hand experience teaching by helping out with after school tutoring. The FEA promotes National Education Week in surrounding communities.

Whether denouncing drug and alcohol abuse or promoting education and prayer each club is dedicated to the students.

Darn Film! Amelia Feron loads film into a new camera. Photographers are very important to the outcome of the Archive.

Hurry Up! Terrence Nowlin rushes to finish his spread. Meeting deadlines is very important to the staff.

Relaxing on the job. John Collins takes a break and reads a magazine. After a hard day of work a break can be nice and enhance learning ability.

Journalism AND Photojournalism

READY, SET, PRINT

As you look through the Archive, do you ever think; "Who does this? Who writes these stories and takes these pictures?" The classes are Photojournalism and Journalism, and they aren't made up of your everyday students. These individuals filled out applications and conducted interviews with their peers, all just to do more work and better the school's student publications. Sophomore Jennifer Boyd says, "I have enjoyed my first year on the staff. Putting the yearbook together has been a rewarding experience."

Last year's Archive was a success yet different with a hole in the cover and a scrapbook appearance. "I liked last year's yearbook," says Marcia Benz, "Especially Style Zone and the color pictures." Many students enjoyed these advances and are looking forward to see what next year's Archive has to offer.

The Cougar Review Staff was always on the move. A lot of hard work was put in trying to keep up with "news" around school. Junior Zach Plasters said, "Journalism is a great class. It allows students to express themselves and inform the student body." Students can write letters to the Editor and participate in essay writing contest.

PHOTOJOURNALISM

FIRST ROW: Jarret Clement, Kelly Simpson, April Pendleton, Terrence Nowlin, Ben Sloop, SECOND ROW: Ben Hutchens, Megan Daumen, Kristin Gregory, Suzie Rusmisel, THRID

Boo Boo,

Like all parents we have the hopes and dreams for your future. We know we could wish success, wealth and fame for you, but nothing will serve you as much as compassion. It will guide you for all eternity and you have as much as anyone we know. We could not be more thankful or proud of the wonderful lady you have become. May the excitement of dreams and the wonderment of life always fill your heart.

All our love,
Mom & Dad

We are proud and love you sis!
Bryan & Marty

It was just a few short years ago when your light first brightened our world - each day it grew even brighter through your love, joy and accomplishments. We love you and we are so proud of the young lady you have become.

Mom & Dad

It seems that in the blink of an eye, you went from kindergarten and Poogy to high school, make-up and driving a car. Soon will begin life after PCHS. Time to turn all those dreams into reality. Your first day of school began with tears and I'm sure your last day will end with them also. Tears of happiness that you have reached a very important goal in your life and tears of sadness for all the friends you are leaving behind. Just remember, you are taking with you a part of each of those you love and whose friendship has helped make you who are. Cherish those memories, for although your future will be full of new friends and places, there will never be new friends quite like the old ones. Good luck baby!

We love you! Mom & Lynn

I am special to my parents because I
I am special because I am the little boy my parents always wanted. I am fun to talk with. I know a lot because I am a good listener and I don't forget anything. I am small and mama can hold me on her lap longer.
Because of me, my sister has someone to fight with! I am very brave, when I get shots, I never cry.

Seth

We love you!

Congratulations, Michelle!!

We are all so proud of you.

What a special young lady you've become.

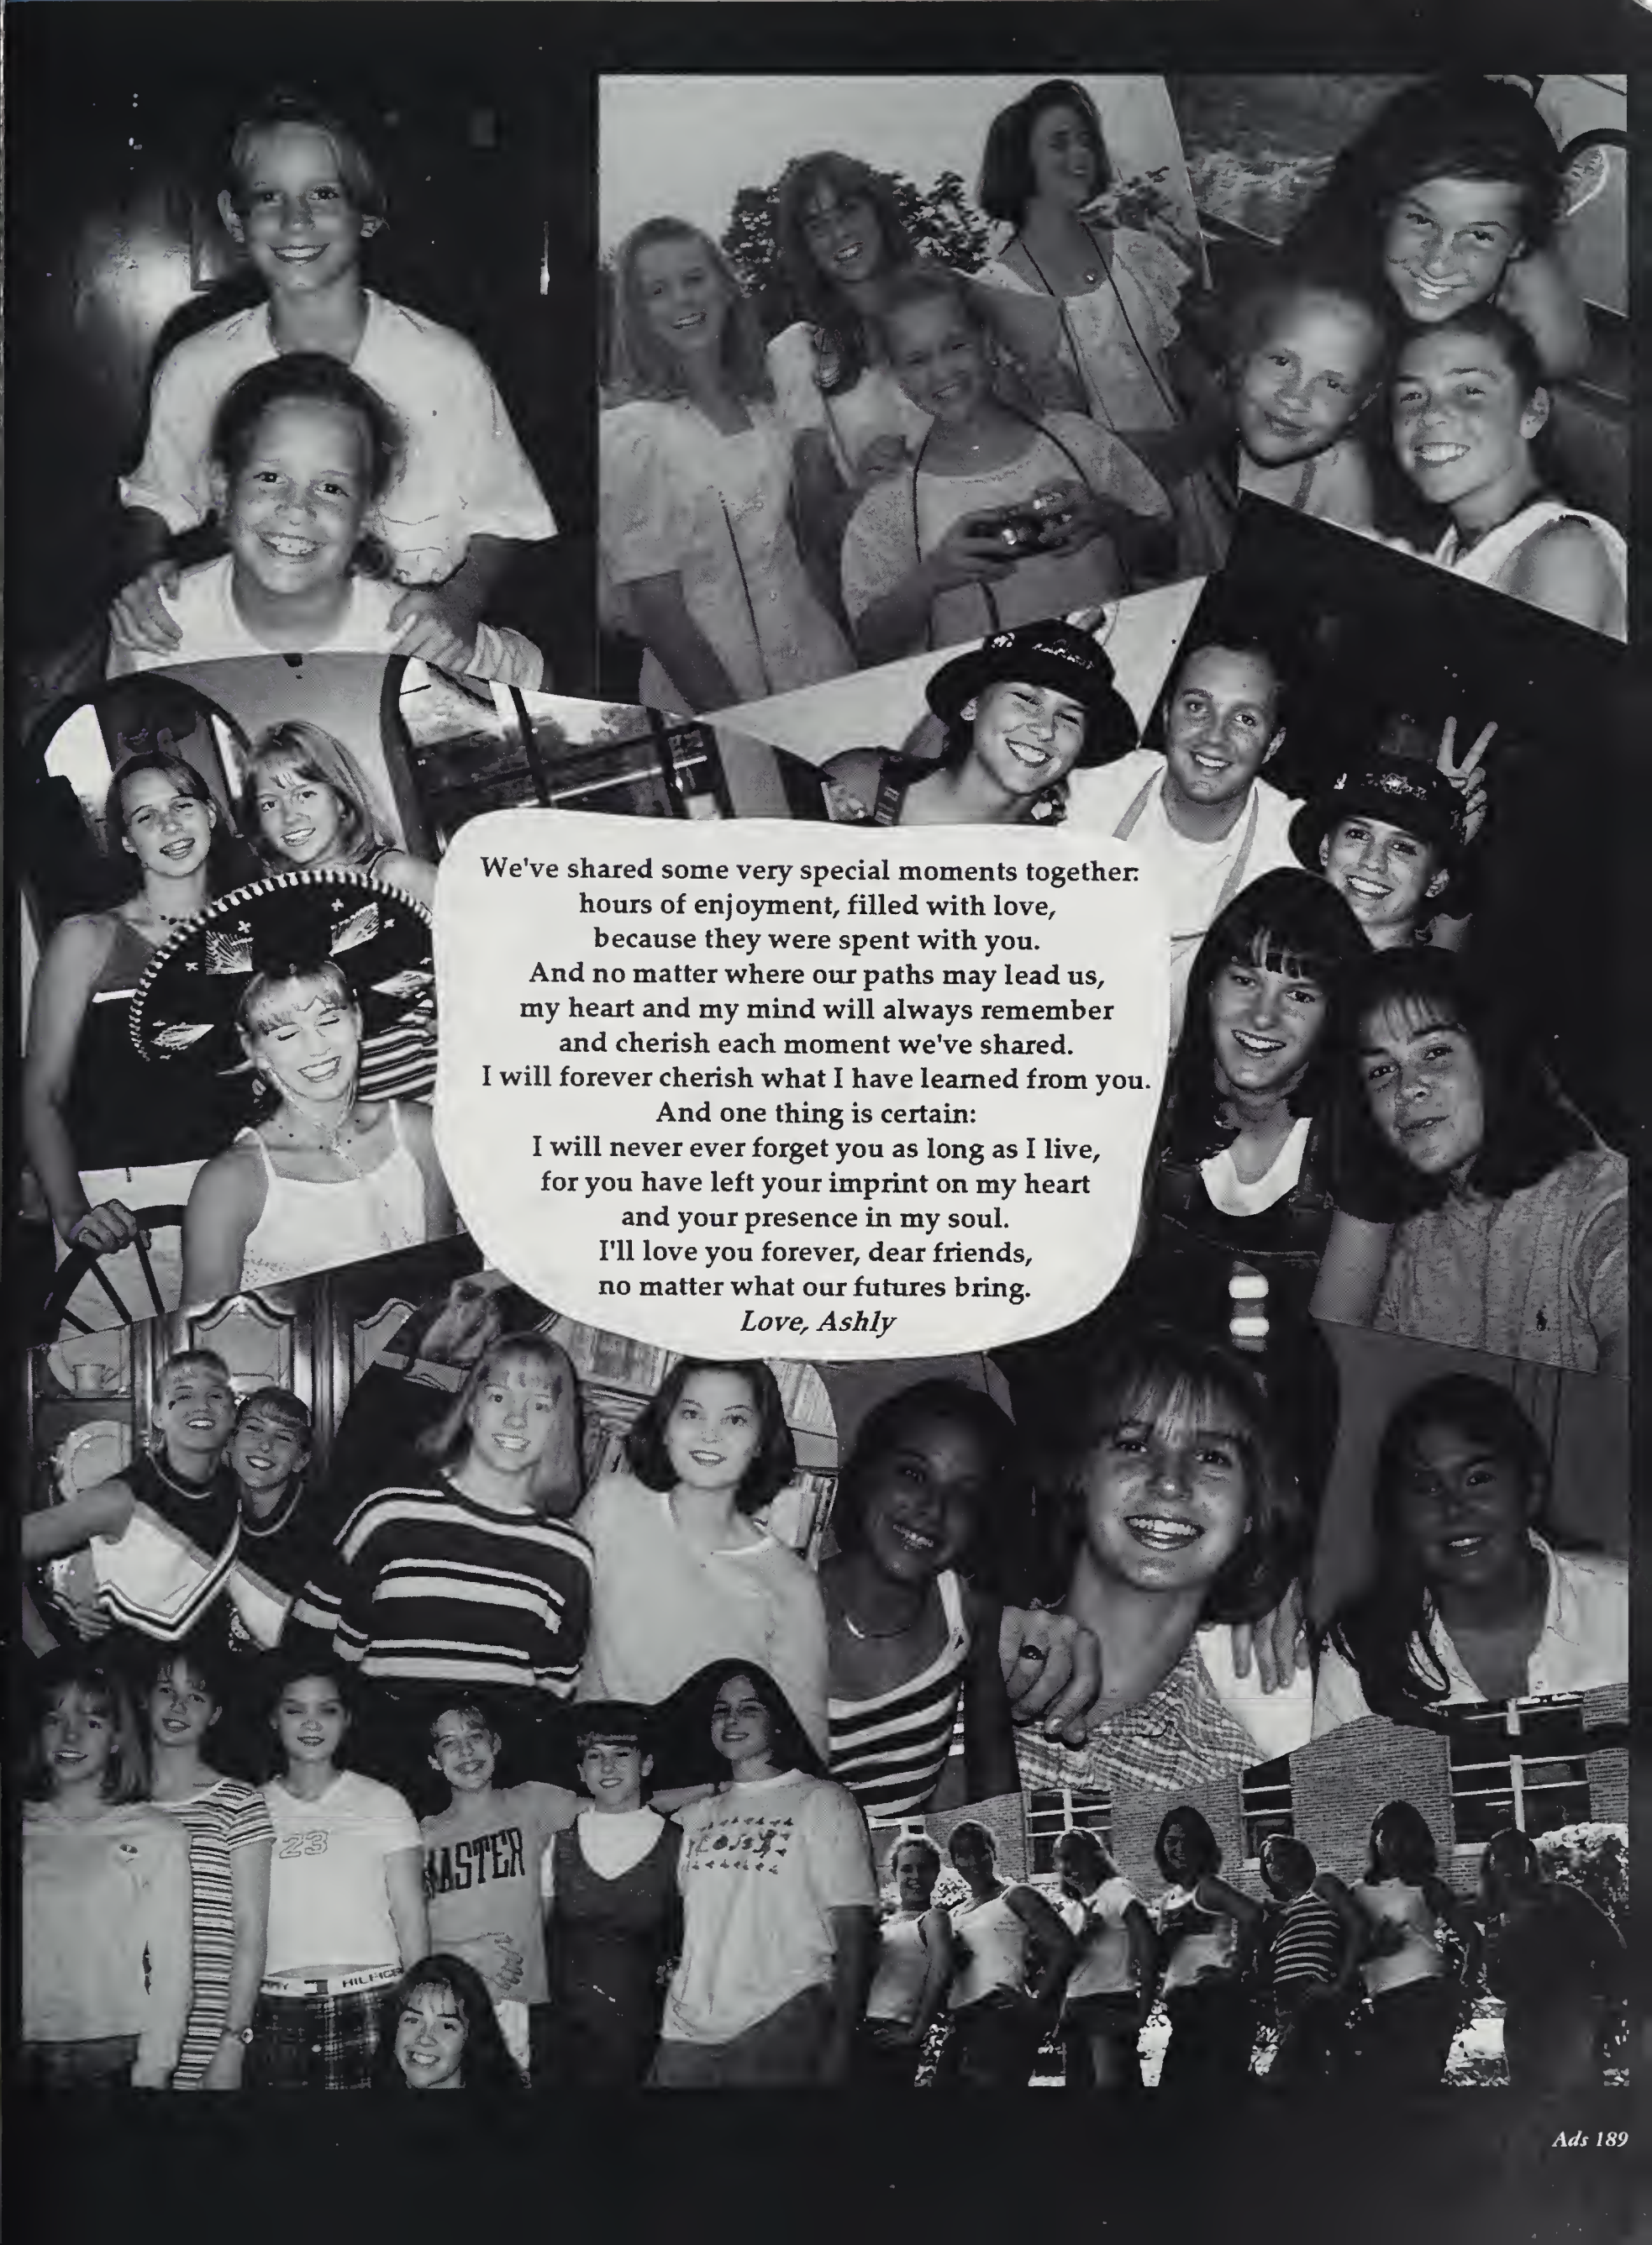

We love you so much,

Mom, Dad, Brad

Grandma Susan & Pa Goad and

Grandma Doris & Pa Pa Holt

We've shared some very special moments together:
hours of enjoyment, filled with love,
because they were spent with you.
And no matter where our paths may lead us,
my heart and my mind will always remember and cherish each moment we've shared.
I will forever cherish what I have learned from you.

And one thing is certain:
I will never ever forget you as long as I live,
for you have left your imprint on my heart and your presence in my soul.
I'll love you forever, dear friends,
no matter what our futures bring.

Love, Ashly

Are You In The Know?

A rough day at the office often brings about opposition and ill will towards others. However, that's not always the case. Relax and enjoy the comfort in knowing that there will always be someone who cares. Cherish the moments as they happen. They will be forever embedded in your soul.

"Give to the world the best you have to offer and the best will come back to you."

-Unknown

As the sun begins to rise, there's hope for a new tomorrow where new friends, adventures, and thrills await us. Bright beginnings welcome us with open arms as we round the next bend. Smile, take a deep breath, and plunge into the unexpected.

As a new day dawns, new roads open for us to follow. Rejoice as the sun smiles upon your face.
